TC doing okay...

Thayer County continues to show improvement in taxable sales. According to the Nebraska Department of Revenue, net taxable sales have increased by an average 17 percent for the first three months of 2012 over last year's sales. February 2012 showed the biggest increase (26.1 percent) over a year ago.

For January 2012, net taxable sales were $2,468,819 or 14.1 percent over January 2011 ($2,164,385). For February 2012, net taxable sales were $2,604,437 compared to $2,065,704 in February 2011. For March 2012, Thayer County had $3,270,487 in net taxable sales compared to $2,945,526 in March 2011.

Hebron, the county seat, has also experienced an increase in net taxable sales in the first three months of the year. For January 2012, the city showed $1,387,887 in net taxable sales; an increase from $1,159,786 in January 2011. In February, the city had $1,391,326 in net taxable sales; an increase of 17.9 percent from a year ago. And in March 2012, Hebron collected $1,810,749 in net taxable sales; an increase of 13.3 percent over March 2011.

The Department of Revenue releases figures approximately three months later than the actual month being profiled. April's figures should be released this week.

Election deadlines...

Thayer County Clerk and election chairman Marie Rauner reminds everyone that filing deadlines are fast approaching for the villages, weed board rural members, ESU's and Class II Schools (Bruning and Davenport).

Incumbents have until July 16 and new filers have until August 1, 2012.

County Committee...

There will be a county committee outreach meeting at the Thayer County FSA Office Wednesday, July 11, at 10 a.m.

The objective of the informal meeting will be to discuss the County Committee structure and election process. It is intended to provide general election information for beginning farmers, women, minority producers or any other producers interested in learning more about the election process.

Back in the 1930s, Congress established a unique system under which Federal farm programs were to be administered locally. Farmers and ranchers who are eligible to participate in these programs elect a 3-5 person county committee, which reviews county office operations and makes some of the decisions on how to apply the programs.

This grassroots approach gives farmers and ranchers a much-needed say in how Federal actions affect their communities and their individual operations. For more information on how county committees work, visit www.fsa.usda.gov/elections.

The meeting is expected to last approximately 30 minutes.

Commissioners review plan of assessment

Thayer County Assessor Karla Joe presented the annual plan of assessment to county commissioners as they rounded out the first half of 2012. The plan, representing assessment plans for the next three years, summarizes parcel count and valuation. According to the report, the uniform standard for the assessed value of real property for tax purposes is actual value, which is defined by law as "the market value of real property in the ordinary course of trade." In all there are 6,146 parcels of owned land in Thayer County valued at $911,102,309.

While residential property represents 46 percent of owned parcels of land in the county, valuation amounts to only 12.41 percent of the total or $113,034,495. Agricultural land is where the bulk of the county's value lies; representing 45.5 percent of land ownership, the rich black soil makes up 83.22 percent of the total valuation or $758,223,903. The rest is made up of commercial ($30,674,987), industrial ($7,980,918) and recreational ($1,188,003).

The assessor's office personnel consists of the assessor, the deputy assessor, a full time clerk and one part time staff member. The assessor and staff actively participate in the appraisal process, Joe said and added, "We're doing most of the physical labor now, so our budget is going down." An outside appraisal firm, namely Stanard Appraisal Services Inc., handles most commercial parcels, the complex pick-up work, and statistical analysis, Joe said.

The Plan of Assessment is kept on file at the Thayer County Clerk's office.

A multi-million dollar design for Thayer Central Community Schools, produced by W Design Association of Hastings, was presented to the public last week in two townhall-style meetings at the Primary School in downtown Hebron. One of the highlights of the plan is the replacement of the central parking lot with a sunken gymnasium (#8) thereby connecting the high school and elementary buildings and eliminating the need for students to cross between the buildings through traffic.

Safety, more room, campus unification highlight design

The plans for multi-million dollar improvements to Thayer Central Community Schools were presented to the public last week in two townhall-style meetings. The presentation focused on an "ideal" design developed by W Design Associates of Hastings addressing all concerns initiated by the school's staff, administration and board. And while the plans do answer wants and needs, the $10-16 million price tag takes away the breath of even the most stoic taxpayer.

"You know who's going to pay for this, don't you?" Asked local farmer Bob Marsh attending the Monday night meeting. "All of us with ag land. My land valuation increased by 37 percent while my dad's house went down. We'll end up paying 80 percent of it. The plan is great, but it isn't fair that some of us will have to pay so much."

TCCS Superintendent Drew Harris said the plans as shown were not solid and actually had quite a bit of flexibility. "It's like a home remodeling project," he said. "You start with what you want and whittle back."

W Design architect Todd Kwiecinski walked those present through the proposed changes which include site and building design changes, the addition and upgrade of athletic facilities and the addition of an auditorium and fine arts center. While the design is

A fatal fire! Our happy celebration sadly terminated by a terrible accident. Rarely, amid the many accidents that daily occur, does a more painful duty devolve upon an editor than now falls to our lot. We enter with sad reluctance upon the portrayal of the most agonizing occurrence that ever marred the happy pages of the history of our bright young town.

About half past 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the Fourth of July, as nearly all of the citizens of Hebron were celebrating Independence Day in Ellison's grove, near town, the enjoyment of the happy occasion was suddenly chilled by the harrowing news that a barn was burning in Hebron and a human being had lost her life in the flames. The report proved too true and the details as we gather them, are as follows: Mr. H.M. Coon and Hon. C.B. Coon his son, had, but a short time before the fire, driven away from the residence of the former on their way to the grove where the celebration was being held. They proceeded some distance when they discovered the fire and drove back as rapidly as possible, but too late to render any assistance. During their absence, the only grown persons on the premises were Mrs. Caroline H. Coon, an old lady aged 72 and her daughter, Mrs. Freeman, who is an invalid. It is supposed that the barn caught fire from firecrackers exploded by the little son of Mrs. Freeman. On discovering the fire, Mrs. Coon at once ran into the barn to free the carriage horse. Whether the horse in his maddened endeavors to break loose, knocked her down or whether she was so prostrated with the intense heat as to be unable to escape, will never be known, but only the sad fact remains that after the fire, her burned body was found close by the head of the dead horse.

Harvest has commenced.

Indications for a good harvest and a Republican victory in this county are both excellent.

Mr. and Mrs. Shell, of Somerset County, Pa., are visiting Elder Lobingier's family. Mrs. Shell and Mrs. Lobingier are sisters and have not met before for 12 years. Mr. S. is clerk of the court of appeals of Somerset County.

Kenneth Urquehart, telegraph operator at Glenville, is taking a lay-off and is stopping in Hebron for a few days. He and Charlie Steward have constructed a battery in the room over Ring's drug store, and Charlie is prosecuting his studies in telegraphy here instead of Davenport.

In view of the frequent accidents that occur from the use of firecrackers, many cities and towns have passed ordinances preventing their use within the corporate limits. It is to be hoped that the youth of our country will discard these noisy and dangerous Chinese nuisances and find some more civilized way of celebrating their patriotism.

J.J. Malowney informs us an indication of the immense harvest of this season, that the firm of Malowney & Wilson have already sold five tons of binding wire and have been compelled to order two tons more in order to meet the demand. Last year the cost per acre for wire averaged 22 cents; this year it will average from 40 to 50 cents. This indicated heavy grain.

Independence Day was celebrated at Friedensau by a large assemblage. Quite a number of Carletonites attended the celebration and a general good time as participated in by all present. Speeches were made by E.S. Knight of Hebron, J.J. Kern of Friedensau and Mr. Eggenberger of Carleton. We hear it said that ample preparations had been made to quench the thirst of the thirsty.

At Alexandria the celebration was a success, as is usual with all that occurs in that enterprising town. The Alexandria club defeated the Fairbury club in the glass ball shooting contest. In the long eared race, J.H. Enslow's jack took first money. But we think it was a convincing race, because Harve hired a small boy to run along behind the jack and persuade him with a big rawhide.

The citizens of Davenport mingled with the Nuckolls county people at Oak Grove on the fourth.

The good people of Chester seem to be well satisfied with the success of their efforts to make everybody comfortable and happy who were present at the celebration at that place.

Our entertaining mill men, Wetherald Bros., are crowding things at a lively rate in order to be ready for the rush of business that they expect after harvest. In consequence the rapid growth of our county and farming interests the boys will soon be compelled to enlarge the capacity of their mill which is already equal to any mill in southern Nebraska.

The ably written account of the celebration at Hebron, is from the fluent pencil of Mr. E.S. Past. We desire to add that the success of the celebration was largely due to the taste, judgment, oversight and attention to details of the Post Commander, Ed. S. Past. Much credit should also be given to the various committees.

L. Youslin, formerly of Fairbury, has started a boot and shoe shop in Hubbell.

The celebration in Hubbell passed pleasantly. The day was cool and pleasant. All enjoyed themselves to their fullest capacity. After the exercises at the grounds the crowd gathered at the race track. After that to the furniture store where the judges sat with faces as long as moral law: Esq. Vinton, Mr. Conklin and Mr. Kyle while the ladies who brought their babies to compete for the buggy prize, passed in front. As might be expected they disagreed and had to settle by lot. Wm. Bodenhouse was the lucky parent and carried away the prize.

J.B. Mayfield of Mitchell County, Iowa, reached Belvidere accompanied by one son, who has rented of H.N. Morgan, the M.M. House farm, east of town. Mr. Mayfield expects to buy considerable real estate in this county, and if sufficient inducements are offered, select a site for a woolen mill somewhere in the county.

The ball at the new hall the night of the Fourth of July, in Belvidere was a success, and those who took part in the dance say they never attended a more pleasant party; 49 numbers were sold.

1892120 Years Ago

Albert Kirby has bought Charles Foreman's dairy and milk business. We understand that Mr. Foreman and family will move to Denver and expects to engage in the manufacture of ice.

Dr. Elder reports his patient, Mrs. V. Morris, who recently had an ovarian tumor removed, now convalescent and no longer needing medical attention.

Little Raymond Orth, whose parents live near Bruning, was drowned by falling into a tub of water.

Night policeman Joseph Klaess says, "I want all citizens to help me detect the young hoodlums who place wires across the sidewalk to trip people. Such falls may result very seriously in broken limbs or even loss of life. If the guilty parties can be discovered they will be severely dealt with."

C.J. Deming says, "Farmers are getting very much annoyed over the lack of hitching posts in Hebron. If the matter is not remedied, many of the farmers will go elsewhere to trade."

Married at the residence of the bride's parents near Hebron, William Crawford of Nebraska City to Miss Mattie R. Buck.

Independence Day was generally observed as a holiday in Thayer County. The exception were many farmers whose work in the cornfield was almost a necessity. No celebration was held in Hebron, but many of the citizens attended other celebrations. At Belvidere a large crowd was in attendance. Judge McKee, Rev Applegate and Mr. Price were the speakers. Myrtha Morgan recited Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg. The fat man's race, two-legged race and other amusements were laughable and interesting. Excellent music was furnished by the Belvidere brass band. The Hebron baseball club defeated the Belvidere Club on a score of 30 to 2.

At Stoddard the celebration was a big success and Hubbell had a rousing celebration.

Fireworks are the most popular way to celebrate our nation's freedom and are a cause of wonder and excitement. Most people know that fireworks are dangerous if not used properly, but just how dangerous are they? Fireworks can cause many different kinds of injuries, but can be especially harmful to the eyes and can cause severe burns if not used properly.

An estimated 21 percent of firework injuries were related to the eyes. These injuries can include a torn iris, rupture of cornea, and even permanent loss of sight. Even seemingly harmless devices such as sparklers can be dangerous. They can reach temperatures of 1800 degrees and remain hot enough to cause serious burns even after being extinguished. Young children playing with sparklers have a greater risk of eye injury or burns because they don't understand the consequences that can occur from one little mistake.

According to the U.S. Fire Administration, 92 percent of the fireworks injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms involved fireworks that Federal regulations permit consumers to use. Fireworks and sparklers are designed to explode or throw off showers of hot sparks. Temperatures may exceed 1200°F. This is hot enough to melt some metals. An estimated 8,600 people were treated for injuries caused by fireworks in 2010, and 73 percent of the injuries occurred between June 18 and July 18. Also in 2010, there were 1,200 injuries associated with sparklers and 900 injuries from firecrackers.

Although careless smoking is the leading cause of fire deaths nationally, the chances of someone dying in a fire caused by fireworks is three times greater than when a cigarette is used. Burns are the leading cause of injury from fireworks, followed by lacerations and contusions, all primarily involving the fingers, hands, eyes, and facial area.

My Thoughts Exactly

By Jacque Rocole

Journal-Register News Director

The heat is on...and it looks like it's going to be on for several days. Just how hot is it? I've begun to feel an emotional attachment to my air conditioner. Please don't make me go anywhere without it.

The National Weather Service put us into a heat advisory Tuesday which means the "feels like" temperature will be anywhere from 105 to 110 degrees. Just how hot is that? Well, I found out I can make instant sun tea.

A heat advisory is issued by the NWS within 12 hours of the heat index (what it really feels like outside) reaching at least 105 degrees but less than 115 degrees for less than three hours per day or if nighttime low temperatures are above 80 degrees for two consecutive days. High values of the heat index are caused by temperatures being significantly above normal and high humidities. And in case you never get out of the state, Nebraska always has high humidity in the summer - some say not as high as Washington, D.C., or Florida - but high humidity, nonetheless. How high is the humidity? If you're looking for a breath of fresh air from June through August, you might as well stop because you're only going to find water.

And speaking of water, health officials tell us the best way to beat the heat is to drink plenty of it, or find shade or air conditioning. Basically, just try to cool down your own body temperature. Make your choices wisely though, because suddenly skipping, running and frolicking through someone's yard sprinkler while on a walk would probably get you the results you seek, but it might also get you a citation for trespassing.

And speaking of walking, that little bit of exercise has gone by the wayside for now, but using my car seems nearly hazardous. Following the actual burns I receive from the door handle and seat belt buckle after parking in the sun, I've learned to drive with just two fingers. And I've also discovered it's quite possible to get sunburned through the tinted glass of the vehicle.

The heat will continue through Independence Day, and looking at the forecast our soaring afternoon temperatures will keep us under a heat advisory at least through Thursday. It appears we may actually see temps under 80 degrees at night prompting a removal of the heat advisory for a few hours, but it's sure to return once dawn breaks.

In the meantime, try to stay mindful of the dangerous conditions - you know it's hot when the biggest danger on the Fourth of July is the heat and not the fireworks! Happy Independence Day and may you find shade during the annual parade.

How To Reduce Junk Mail And Telemarketing Calls

It never fails; you've just sat down to dinner or just gotten in the tub and the phone rings. You just about kill yourself getting to the phone only to hear "Good afternoon, I'm calling from such and such company and we'd like to offer you..." I know you can all relate.

The following information from the Nebraska Attorney General's office describes how to get on the Do Not Call and Do Not Mail lists. This can help eliminate some of the telemarketing calls and junk mail you receive each and every day.

Americans receive over two million tons of junk mail each year. If you feel that you (or someone you love) may be an unwitting victim of unwanted mail or telemarketing calls, you can do something about it.

You can eliminate a vast majority of unwanted junk mail and telemarketing calls for up to five years by registering at the Federal Trade Commission's "Do Not Call" web site at www.donotcall.gov or you can call 1-888-382-1222 or write to the following organizations:

Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 9008, Farmingdale, NY 11735.

Telephone Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 9014, Farmingdale, NY 11735.

You may also fill-out Do Not Call and Do Not Mail cards, which can be obtained from Attorney General Jon Bruning's office, or by visiting www.ago.ne.gov. Each time you receive a call from a different person or entity, you must request that they not call you again.

Some tips to remember:

• Everyone, regardless of age, sex, education level, financial

Fink, Friesen Attend Leadership Seminar

Heath Fink and Caryn Friesen were selected to represent Thayer Central High School at the 2012 Nebraska Leadership Seminar at Doane College June 14-17.

Fink and Friesen will be juniors and participate in numerous community and school activities, including Thayer County Healthy Communities Coalition.

"Nearly 150 students from across Nebraska attended the Nebraska Leadership Seminar," said Dylan Schenk, corporate board president of NLS. "Each of these students have been given the tools to become the leader their community needs – a leader who is inspiring, challenges the norm, and empowers others to discover their strengths."

Nebraska Leadership Seminar, Inc., (NLS) is a statewide leadership organization that teaches students to lead with their strengths through the nonprofit's relationship with the Gallup Organization.

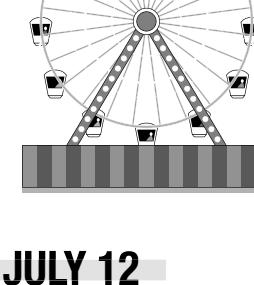

Each summer, the organization hosts a four-day seminar for high school sophomores from around the state to challenge, empower and inspire them to become the leaders Nebraska needs.

Since its founding in 1978, more than 6,000 students from 300 school districts have successfully completed the seminar.

Obituaries

Walter Reiss

Dr. Walter E. Reiss was born in Belvidere on Nov. 27, 1933, as one of two children born to Paul Reiss and Amy (Babka) Reiss Lapcheska. He passed away peacefully with his family at the bedside on Sunday, June 24, 2012. An angel came to earth and lovingly commended his spirit home to our Heavenly Father.

He graduated from Belvidere High School in 1951 and received his B.A. from Doane College in Crete in 1955.

In 1958 Dr. Reiss was awarded his doctorate in medicine from the University of Nebraska School of Medicine.

From 1959 until 1962 he served in the U.S. Army Medical Corp. as a surgical resident in Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. During this time he attended the U.S. Army flight school, and was awarded his pilot license in 1960.

Dr. Reiss provided medical and family services in the Lodi, Calif., community for 48 years. From 1962 until 1990 he served thousands of patients through Vinewood Family Practice. Since 1988 he treated San Joaquin County's most vulnerable families, women and children through Lodi Memorial Hospital's Ham Lane Urgent Care Clinic and the Lodi Homeless Shelter.

Dr. Reiss established and directed the Salvation Army Clinic in Lodi as a volunteer physician, providing care after his regular working day. In its goal to provide wellness services to those without access to medical care, the clinic was first restricted to a small room in the old Salvation Army of

Dr. Reiss leaves behind his loving wife of 55 years, Carol, with whom he shared a strong faith. He was a loving and devoted father to three daughters, Laurie (David) Peterson of Walnut Creek, Calif.; Susan Reiss of Elk Grove, Calif.; and Kristine (Brett) Petersen of Soquel, Calif. He was a wonderful and supportive grandfather to four grandchildren, Ebba and Ian Peterson, and Madeline and Claire Petersen. He is also survived by his sister, Mary Bruning of Bruning and an extended and loving family.

He is preceded in death by his mother and father.

Dr. Reiss was a man with great humility and sense of purpose. After his devotion to his family and his faith, he was an ardent supporter of Nebraska football. He was a talented musician, and found great joy playing his trumpet.

Being a pilot was his passion.

Whether flying to the upcoming Husker game or to the mountains to enjoy his family and a round of golf on the shores of Lake Tahoe, Dr. Reiss displayed a great appreciation for his life.

The State of Nebraska Board of Engineers and Architects recently notified Seacat of his qualification as a licensed Professional Mechanical Engineer. While each state has its own regulations regarding engineering licensure, Seacat was required to earn his degree from an ABET-accredited engineering program and pass the FE exam (Fundamental of Engineering) to qualify, which he completed during his time at Kansas State University.

Improvement plan...

Facility Improvements- Floor Plan Options and Concepts

The floor plan gives a clear indication of where the new gymnasium (#5), auditorium (#6), lobby (#9), cafeteria (#7), administration (#4), and classrooms (#8) will be in comparison to the current layout (#1, #2, #3).

simply an outline and more changes are sure to be made, large-scale modifications were the addition of a sunken gymnasium providing enough seating for 1,200 people, elimination of the central parking lot and the addition of a separate auditorium.

With the addition of a new gymnasium, the elementary gym will be used for more classrooms; the hope is to move primary students from the school downtown up to the main campus. Harris said he was told by the fire marshal that the primary school gym would need to be sprinkled if the district continued to use the downtown facility. He said with the additional classrooms and space suggested by the proposed design, the district could close the primary building and sell it.

Campus security will also improve with all the district's students in one place and the elimination of the central parking lot. The new gymnasium would connect the two existing buildings unifying the campus. "Right now with kids going through the parking lot between buildings, all the doors must stay unlocked to allow access to the buildings," Harris said. "Quite frankly, it's a different world today and security is an issue."

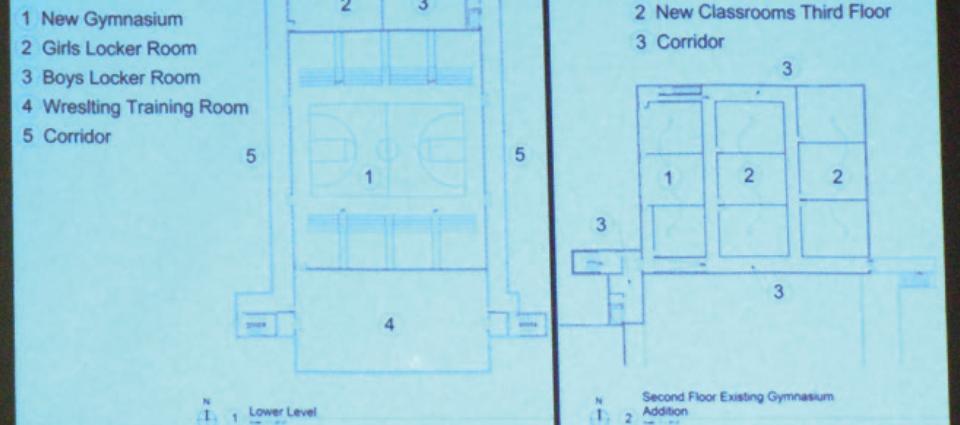

Kwiecinski said the main addition (new gymnasium, entrance, elimination of the central parking lot) will cost $7.5 to 8 million while the auditorium will cost about $4.6 million. Other modifications will run about $902,000, as the design reads now.

During a special election in March, Fillmore Central patrons overwhelmingly rejected a proposed $9.8 million bond issue to pay for improvements and more space at the school. If the bond had passed, it would have paid for a 36,000-square-foot addition to the high school and raised the taxes on a $100,000 home by about $115 a year.

Harris said the Thayer Central school board will hold additional presentations, the next later this month; information will include more specific dollar figures in relation to individual projects and improvements within the design.

Pastor from Superior brings word to Hebron

Dave Coleman, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene in Superior, has felt the leading of the Lord to plant a worship center in Hebron. Pastor Coleman, his family, wife Joan and three children, Jessica, Sara and Ryan, have been in Superior five years, and plan to continue to serve the congregation there.

Sunday evening services have been held at 916 Lincoln Ave., in Hebron. The building is a dwelling-type house owned by Gwen Mohler. After Mohler moved to Superior, several months ago, the house was put up for sale. No buyer is available at this time, so it has served as a meeting place for the new church.

Services start at 6 p.m., with the preaching of the work by Pastor Coleman. The community is cordially invited to join the services at any time.

Rains Needed Now Or Entire State Could See Drought

Summer has just begun, but some areas across the state already resemble those of late summer.

And the problem isn't just in Nebraska. All across the Great Plains, drought is starting to take hold just as corn crops are about to come into pollination - a critical time for water.

The latest U.S. Drought Monitor shows the western two-thirds of the state in a moderate drought.

And even though the northeastern quarter of the state is not in a drought, Al Dutcher, state climatologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said, "If it doesn't rain, things are going to get ugly."

So far in eastern Nebraska, based on the indicators used in the Drought Monitor, precipitation has been sufficient enough to keep crops stress at minimum so far.

"If we keep getting precipitation, I don't expect any deterioration of conditions. However, we are entering a high water use period for corn and subsoil moisture levels are below normal in this region because of our dry fall and spring."

This means eastern Nebraska could easily be moved from normal to a severe drought in a couple of weeks.

Dutcher said a big problem is high evapotranspiration rates across the state.

ET rates are determined by temperature, wind, relative humidity and solar radiation.

With temperatures above normal, high winds, high solar radiation and low relative humidity earlier this week, the combination makes it hard to keep up with corn's moisture demands, even with irrigation.

Dutcher said the biggest factor has been the wind.

Wind demands moisture, causing corn plants to start rolling their leaves to conserve moisture.

"A 10-mile-per-hour wind usually can be offset by the corn's canopy," Dutcher said. "But anything faster than that increases the airflow through the full canopy and subsequently increases surface evaporation and transpiration. When ET values get above .40 of an inch, it is difficult for corn to physically move that much water through its leaves.

"Everything is working to conspire against vegetation this year and plants are using water quicker than normal."

He said alfalfa, wheat, pasture grass and even trees that vegetated out in March of this year are a whole month ahead in the growing season and have been using water for an additional month this year.

"We are seeing July type conditions in June pastures," he said.

Dewey Lienemann, extension educator in Webster County, said most prairie hay fields in south central Nebraska did not develop sufficiently to allow for a cutting at this time, and those that did cut the hay found a dramatic drop from last year.

In addition, alfalfa fields in dryland conditions provided from half to two-thirds of normal first cuttings and second cuttings were non-existent.

"The alfalfa fields just seem to be sitting there dormant," he said. "There may be some new growth with the moisture, but without additional moisture with this heat and wind, it will likely be limited."

Dutcher said in corn, "we have not seen too early of development because it essentially got planted when it was supposed to." The crop insurance deadline of April 11 made it so many farmers did not start planting until after that date.

"If we would have seen a lot of early planted corn, the situation right now would be much more extreme on the corn crop," he said.

Dutcher said the part of Nebraska experiencing the worst of the drought is the Panhandle, especially the central Panhandle and Scottsbluff area. In addition, the Sandhills were upgraded to a moderate drought by the U.S. Drought Monitor this week.

As far as the future forecast, after today (June 22) precipitation chances diminish.

"We are really being dominated by an upper ridge," Dutcher said. "However, the good news is that a lot of times, we can get some pretty tremendous thunderstorms in this type of scenario as parts of eastern Nebraska did last week when it got 2.5 inches of rain."

The Climate Prediction Center's 30-day forecast indicates all of Nebraska should experience above normal temperatures. They also are indicating below normal precipitation for the eastern two-thirds of the state.

Nebraska, east/southeastward through central Illinois, Dutchers said. The highest probability of below normal precipitation has been assigned to the eastern one-third of the state. Even though, Western Nebraska has not been assigned a precipitation tendency for July, the U.S. Drought Monitor outlook for the next three months shows little relief. It also indicates areas currently depicted as experiencing normal conditions, will likely experience drought conditions within the next three months.

Dutcher said a big factor in the forecast is what the winds will do.

"The worst case scenario will be 100 degree temperatures and 30-mile-per-hour winds," he said.

He said this dry weather also means an increased risk of dry lightning strikes, which were responsible for fires in Colorado. He said there already have been some dry lightning strikes in the Panhandle.

"With dry, burnt pastures, those strikes can rapidly build a significant fire," he said. "It is important to be aware of fire danger, especially as we go into the Fourth of July holiday."
