Hebron entrance to highlight Oregon Trail

A corten steel silhouette of what life was like on the Oregon Trail is set for the first exit into Hebron from the north and it may be finished this construction season.

Randy Hergott, who was the go-between for the Hebron Community Foundation and City of Hebron, presented the design by Mike Korff out of Prairie Village, Kan., to the city council during its April meeting and after showing the council a design by Mike Korff out of Prairie Village, Kan., and placing cones at the proposed location, the council approved the

"This is to signify the beacon of the Oregon Trail," Hergott said. "We were a town of the Oregon Trail."

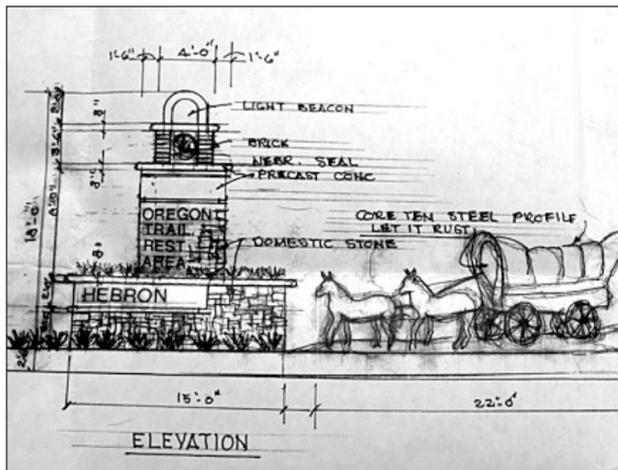

It's been several months since the foundation first began discussing the idea, member John Musgrave said.

The foundation was looking for projects.

"I thought we needed it. We needed something like the Bruning sign," Musgrave said.

Korff also designed the Bruning sign for Mary Bruning.

"It's been very helpful to

The Oregon Trail monument with a wagon led by horses was drawn by Mike Korff, who grew up in Hebron, and may be finished this construction season at the first exit into Hebron coming from the north. Although the monument features "Oregon Trail Rest Area," it will not be a rest area.

project at its May meeting.

"It went very well at the council," Hergott said.

The first thing he made clear was the silhouette, complete with an 18-foot high stone monument with a base of four feet coming out of the ground, and topped off by a beacon light, will not be a rest area.

The original silhouette drawing included oxen at the end of the reins of a covered wagon, but those will be changed to horses. The corten steel is a rust color and will not deteriorate.

The monument's stone will be domestic-colored, Hergott said, meaning the color of the area's natural limestone feature. The entire structure and silhouette will be landscaped and surrounded by drought-tolerant plantings.

Hergott will oversee the project through to completion using local labor.

And with the council's idea to attract drivers coming from both directions, the monument will now have somewhat of a 3D effect with the city's name "Hebron" facing north and south.

Bruning," Korff said. "I wanted to do the same thing for Hebron. I've always known the Oregon Trail has been a major thing for Hebron."

Korff said the idea was to have a tall monument that could be seen from a distance. The Bruning sign has always received praise for its placement and height.

"I just think we needed it and everyone was happy with the design. This should look nice," Musgrave said.

Korff, who grew up in Hebron, said he designed the monument and silhouette at no charge.

"We do this every day," he said. His firm, Edwin Korff, has designed for Johnson County Community College and Kansas City's Crown Center.

Hergott said the monument will also have floodlights and the foundation may sell bricks for those who want to contribute and have their names engraved in history.

It is unknown where the names will be placed, Hergott said.

Learning center gears up for future

By Nancy McGill

By September, the Southeast Community College Hebron Learning Center should be busy as the center prepares for credit classes, beginning with the July summer quarter.

Thanks to an advisory meeting last year followed up by task force meetings this year, learning center coordinator, Crystal Fangmeier said the center now has direction until at least 2018 when it will reevaluate its direction.

From the meetings, SCC decided to focus on three areas — trades and industry, small business and ag business and general education.

"I appreciate the support of the community coming out to my task force meetings and sharing what they felt were needs in the community," Fangmeier said. "I think of ideas, but it is really the public that tells me what they want."

Leisure classes are also on tap. In August, the center will offer two sessions on the solar eclipse — a pre-session Aug. 14 will explain what to watch for during the eclipse and a second session Aug. 20. The eclipse is Aug. 21.

In July, the center will offer math, english and history for day classes. Quarters at SCC run in two-month increments. The classes will be presented via distance learning with instructors based in Lincoln, Milford or Beatrice.

The distance learning classes are scheduled at specific times as opposed to online classes, which are for individuals learning on their own.

High school students are welcome to take summer classes. Dual credit classes for them come with a bonus — half-price tuition.

Fangmeier said additional leisure learning classes will focus on how to use smartphones effectively and learning poetry.

Currently, the learning center is holding English as a second language and basic adult education classes. Students are driving in from Geneva and the Chester area, in addition to those living in Hebron.

Fangmeier said the goal of the learning centers was to be conveniently located for students living no more than 30 miles away within SCC's 15-county service area.

Other centers are in York, Plattsmouth and Nebraska City. Learning centers in Wahoo and Falls City need buildings, but are otherwise progressing.

Fangmeier said it might seem like not much is going on at the Hebron location, but the process and preparation is moving along.

"We just need time to get up and get everything running," she said.

A ribbon cutting for the center will be held in July.

Fangmeier is more than a familiar face in Hebron because of her longtime work with the University of Lincoln Nebraska Extension.

She is still working with the Extension, but will be phased out by the end of June.

"It's a lot of fun, a different role and exciting," she said about her new position with SCC.

Although people may be worried Fangmeier is leaving the Extension, the "great staff" there and "wonderful volunteers" will ensure the success of future Extension operations, she said.

Hear Nebraska visits Hebron

Representatives of Hear Nebraska, which promotes appreciation for Nebraska's creative industry through a variety of techniques visited Hebron in anticipation of the upcoming "Good Living Tour" that will be held in conjunction with Rockin' In Roosevelt Music and Art in the Park June 9. The event will feature bands of Nebraska and a hub of free activities, beginning at 4:30 p.m. Andrew Stellmon (Hear Nebraska managing editor), Peter Barnes (photographer) and Robert Taylor (promotions volunteer) spent the day in Hebron and explained to the chamber's Talk of the Town crowd what Hear Nebraska's mission is, including "building community through music." The three also visited with music students at Thayer Central and hung posters advertising the upcoming concert.

Fair board approves hobby stock this year

The Thayer County Fair Board answered to hobby stock drivers this year by including the feature instead of B Mods.

"It's been requested for several years," board president Bob Dankenbring said.

The purse will be $1,000, the same as the B Mods. The race will run the final night of the fair, July 22. The fair begins July 19.

Once again, the dates center around the carnival operator, Wagner's and will run all four nights of the fair.

"It is the only time we can get a carnival operator. We're probably going to be on this third weekend of July for the foreseeable future," Dankenbring said.

Additional changes will be improvements on the fair grounds. In the beer garden will be a stage for bands and a new permanent shelter for shade and socializing.

The 4-H building will sport a new awning on the south side for the food stand and another permanent shelter will go in near the Grandstand.

Dankenbring said the website, www.thayercountyfair.com, will list the schedule.

Trailer races are on the schedule and pit passes will be available.

Featured this year will be Joseph Hall as Elvis in the Grandstand July 20 for free.

Abby Nicole will perform July 21 and on the beer garden stage July 22 after the race. Repeat Offenders are scheduled for July 21 at 10 p.m. in the beer garden.

Sheriff Lindsey and Deputy Enslow escorted the Davenport bank burglars to the state penitentiary Tuesday much against the wishes of the burglars, who would have preferred to travel alone.

Deshler: H. J. Struve shipped 50 cases of eggs Tuesday. That amount, 1500 dozen, is quite a lot for our little burg, for one firm to handle in one week.

We are plum disgusted with the weather clerk. He had better turn his job over to someone who can keep sober, and go to digging post holes. Yesterday, people had to pinch themselves to see if they were awake, when on looking out doors they saw a vision of fairyland, the trees weighted down with a mantle of snow. For once the old timer is outclassed in tales of the unusual, and the present generation can tell their grandchildren of the heavy snow (which with the telling will probably develop into a death-dealing blizzard) on April 25, 1907--five days before May.

On his birthday, and exactly on the date of his Journal subscription expiration, Chas. Rice paid for another year. John Diener, one of the worthy citizens of Deshler, made a pleasant subscription call at the Journal office. He came to this country from Germany in 1868, and in 1876 settled in Thayer County. At that time he owned $3. Now he owns three farms in Gilead precinct--560 acres--and we presume $50,000 would be a conservative estimate of other property he has amassed in this land of the free.

Patriotic Day in Hebron Yesterday. Two bands and drum corps, flags, marching school children, patriotic societies and decorated autos made a splendid parade. Fine speaking and music at the park.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to burglarize the Farmer's State Bank of Belvidere Sunday night--or rather Monday morning. About 2:30 o'clock the Carleton telephone exchange called Hebron stating that connection had been broken off at Belvidere both by telephone and telegraph. Sheriff Pike, Deputy Calloway, Troy Pike and Wireman Bud Cannon left Hebron at 2:45 by auto, and on reaching Belvidere found the telegraph lines at both depots had been cut. All the toll lines were cut on the telephone cable, but one connecting Hebron, Belvidere and Alexandria. The new bank was entered by a key at the front door, but only $1.30 change was taken from one of the drawers. Evidently the burglars were depending on easily opening the old safe, used temporarily and did not know that a burglar proof safe had been installed just the day before and their attempted burglary was fruitless.

Adolph Philipp informs us that previous weather signs indicate a killing frost between May 10 and 14, and advised us to be not in such a hurry with our spring garden.

Yesterday afternoon arguments waxed warm in the County Commissioner's room in Hebron. Delegates from Bruning, Belvidere and Chester were there about 30 strong in a demand for gravel on the main highways in Thayer County in preference to the money being expended on the grading of new highways. The Commissioners were not in accord with the views of their constituents at the beginning of a two and a half hour debate on the question. But after strong and effective talking by many of the delegates they conceded with the delegation that gravel on the established highways in the county was more essential at present than a large sum of money expend on grading new routes to the same point. All in all we have prospects of witnessing the spreading of gravel on the entire Meridian highway through Thayer County before the summer wanes. A resolution drawn by the commissioners to be presented to the state and federal departments favoring the application of gravel at present on established highways and new roads be considered at a later date.

A weekend storm, described as "the worst since 1949" dumped as much as 17 inches of snow on various Nebraska localities and stranded thousands of motorists throughout the mid-west, but in Hebron the picture was largely of a substantial boost to the moisture situation for the second week in a row. The weekend precipitation total was 1.17 inches, coming both as rain and snow that mostly melted as it fell, but only a fortunate temperature situation kept Hebron from one of the heaviest snowstorms in history. The mercury hovered constantly at the 32 degree mark, when only a slight drop would have prevented the falling snow from melting, and coupled with the heavy winds, provided the ingredients for a history making blizzard.

National Hospital Week

This week Thayer County Health Services (TCHS), along with other hospitals across the country, is celebrating National Hospital Week (May 7-12). This week is a time for all of us to celebrate the women and men who support the health and well being of our local communities. TCHS is blessed to have a dedicated and compassionate staff providing exceptional care from the heart.

The American Hospital Association estimates rural hospitals provide essential healthcare services to nearly 51 million people, but the impact doesn't stop there. The contribution made by TCHS to the local economy goes far beyond the services it provides and plays a key role in our ability to live the "Good Life."

When you think about it, rural hospitals in Nebraska contribute a lot more than just healthcare to the local communities they serve. Nebraska hospitals have a real impact on the state's economy. Hospitals in the state provide essential jobs by employing nearly 42,000 people and creating a demand for an additional 29,000 indirect jobs related to healthcare.

In rural communities with a critical assess hospital like TCHS, the economic impact is significant. After manufacturing, healthcare is the second largest employer in Thayer County. In addition to providing jobs, the indirect impact comes from the goods and services purchased by the hospital and its employees.

TCHS is committed to improving the services they provide. To help make sure they are addressing the issues that are important to you, members of the hospital administration are going to start holding community forums throughout the year to discuss different healthcare issues that affect patients, residents and the local communities.

Here soon, TCHS will be holding community forums in Deshler, Bruning, Davenport and Hebron. These first meetings will be on the topic of hospital billing and a new statement format. It is important to TCHS that their patients know they have heard their concerns and want to work with them on this issue. These forums are open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

TCHS's goal is to keep looking for ways to improve the care they provide. As your local healthcare provider, TCHS has a vested interest in working with the local communities to make Thayer County an attractive place to live and work. This commitment was behind their decision to do the $14.8 million dollar hospital renovation and expansion project that will be completed later this year.

This week during Hospital Week, TCHS wants to not only thank their dedicated staff for all they do, but to also say thanks to everyone that has supported their mission this past year. This includes patients, family members, community leaders, residents and especially those that gave a gift to the foundation or gift in support of the current building project.

TCHS is truly grateful for all the community support it receives. TCHS is another example of how when everyone work together - we all benefit.

Systematic inspection of property in 6-year cycle

As required under Nebraska Statute 77-1311.03 regarding the systematic inspection of property within a six-year cycle, personnel from the Thayer County Assessor's office will be onsite in Bruning and Davenport during the next few months. We will be reviewing both residential and commercial properties.

Currently we are working in Bruning, updating record information and taking new photos. When Bruning is complete notices will be sent to all property owners with structures in Davenport before review begins.

The Assessor's office is also working with Ray's I.T. Services, LLC on new rural imagery. Ray Wright, who will be providing this service, serves as network consultant for Thayer County. The new imagery will be taken by a drone. This imagery will be attached to our GIS layer and a copy will be kept in the record card. He plans to begin work on this project the first of June in the southern tier of townships and will continue across the county working north. We will notify property owners with structures of the upcoming imagery work.

The Assessor's office wants the public to be aware of the review work that we will be doing. If you have questions or concerns, please contact our office.

Warmer days bring tick season to Nebraska

As cold days turn warm and sunny, many Nebraskans head outside which puts them at greater risk for tick bites.

"Tick-related illnesses can be serious," said Dr. Tom Safranek, State Epidemiologist for the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services. "We're more active when the weather warms up and so are ticks. Don't forget to take steps to protect yourself from being bitten by one."

Preventive steps include:
- Use a repellent with at least 20 percent DEET, picaridin or IR3535 or permethrin-treated clothing.

- Dress in long-sleeved shirts, pants and socks when you're outside.

- Do frequent tick checks after being outdoors and remove attached ticks promptly with fine-tipped tweezers.

- Shower as soon as possible after being outdoors.

Ticks are generally found near the ground, in brushy or wooded areas. They can't jump or fly. Instead, they climb tall grasses or shrubs and wait for you to brush against them. When this happens, they climb on and seek a site for attachment. Ticks can cause a number of diseases and some can be life-threatening.

What to do if you find an attached tick:

- Remove the attached tick as soon as you notice it by grasping with tweezers, as close to the skin as possible, and pulling it straight out. Early removal can minimize and often eliminate the chance of an infection.

- Watch for signs of illness such as rash or fever in the days and weeks following the bite, and see a health care provider if these develop.

Additional information about tick-related diseases is available here - www.cdc.gov/ticks.

Some pets are also susceptible to tick-related disease. Learn more about tick bite prevention for your pets - www.cdc.gov/ticks/avoid/on_pets.html.

Belvidere

By Linda Hudson

Graduation...Mother's Day...Planting Flowers and Garden. Schedules are full! Can Care A-Van is coming to Hebron in June. Let's see how much we can collect from Belvidere. Basically there is about three weeks to collect for this worthy cause. Non perishable items can be left at the museum, elevator, Toad's, and the church. All goods remain in Thayer County so this drive by Channel 10-11 is a good place to share. It will be in Hebron on June 8.

Speaking of this date, on June 8, 1949, a tornado leveled buildings in Belvidere and claimed three lives. After this devastation the Omaha World Herald held a fund raising campaign. The money of approximately $2500 was applied to the building of the Quonset Building which served as the Community Center until the time that a new building was built in 2000-2001. This would be a signal for residents to give in commemoration of the Belvidere tornado 68 years ago.

All residents are more than aware of the tornadoes which can occur. Nebraska averages 61 tornadoes and holds the distinction of having the third most tornadoes in a year's time. Nebraska's peak month is June and May is the second most. In 2004 the most tornadoes were recorded with 110 twist-ers. It was in May, 1953, that Hebron experienced devastation from a tornado. It was on that date that Bill Svoboda had twins born.

Bonnie and Russ Priefert traveled to Lincoln for their granddaughter, Rubie's, club volleyball game on Sunday. In the afternoon, they attended the Husker baseball game at Hawks Field. The Cornhuskers won and they are now in first place in the Big Ten. They only have two league games left with Michigan State, and Penn State.

Carol Aude, Linda Telecky and Wilma Bonila traveled to Wichita over the weekend to visit cousins in Kansas. While there they visited the Wichita Botanical Gardens.

Kent and Jackie Williamson drove to Lincoln to watch Marathon runners from their family. Linda Hudson's son-in-law also run in the marathon.

Lots of tears to be expected this weekend. They should all be happy tears though!

Congratulations to all involved!

Clayton Hintz graduates Concordia

Clayton R. Hintz of Hebron received a Bachelor of Science from Concordia University, Nebraska, on May 6, 2017.

The university awarded undergraduate or graduate degrees to 306 May graduates. Graduates receiving a degree in August 2016 or December 2016 were also invited to participate in the ceremony. Rev. Dr. John Mehl of Seward, Nebraska, presented the commencement address, and Concordia presented additional honorary awards and degrees.

In his commencement address, Mehl talked about Concordia being a sending place. "It is a place where people come to be prepared for service in church and world and today, you are being sent out to do that very thing," said Mehl.

"You are being sent out this day to show God's love by what you do and say in a variety of different places and in different vocations all over the world. Some of you will stay in Seward and others will go to Cambodia and everywhere in-between," Mehl said.

Hintz receives degree from Methodist

Kale Hintz of Hebron is among the 179 graduates at this year's spring commencement at Nebraska Methodist College in Omaha.

The celebrations will begin May 4 with the Graduate's Reception, hosted by the NMC Alumni Association. On May 5, two commencement ceremonies will be held at St. Andrew's United Methodist Church: one to recognize nursing graduates and another to honor the allied health graduates.

Hintz will receive an Associate of Science degree, Physical Therapy Assistant.

Gross awarded Military Service PA of the Year

Col. Pauline V. Gross, U.S. Army, SP, PA-C, could have stayed in her comfort zone as a clinician and retired after 20 years of service, as many others in her field have done.

But after more than 40 years in the Army, 32 of which as a PA, Gross has never let off the gas. From the moment she graduated from PA school, the recipient of the 2017 Military Service PA of the Year award continually sought new ways to improve the care of soldiers, while simultaneously advocating for PAs in the Army.

"When I first began working as a PA, I was amazed by how often large-scale decisions were being made without including input from all of the groups that would be impacted, particularly the PAs," Gross said. "That made me quickly realize we needed to expand our role so that we could consistently have a seat at the table."

Gross immediately volunteered to join one of those decision-making committees. And from that moment on, she continued to volunteer for whichever opportunities would have an impact on the health and safety of her fellow soldiers.

Trailblazer for Others: "Whenever I had the chance, I tried to put myself out there," Gross said. "I volunteered to be chief of clinic, to chair committees, to teach the medics. There were countless times when I thought that if we [PAs] aren't going to do it, who else will?"

Her can-do approach of always stepping forward led her to a wide variety of assignments that blazed a path for other PAs to follow. She became the first female PA deployed to Palmerola (now Soto Cano) Air Force Base in Honduras. A decade later, she became the first PA to be a clinic "Chief in Charge" in South Korea. And later, she became the first PA assigned to the U.S. Army Recruiting Command.

In her current role, Gross is the first PA ever to become installation management command surgeon for the U.S. Army, traditionally a physician-held position. She works with a variety of civilians and former military members, and they all typically have the same reaction when they discover Gross is a PA.

"As soon as they find out, they immediately get excited because they all have such fond memories of the PAs who served in their units," Gross said. "That's because PAs are so unique. The way we talk with our patients and interact with them is on a different level than other providers, and everybody seems to recognize that fact."

Earned Respect for Army PAs: Gross is always amazed by the respect PAs have earned throughout Army. She says every time someone shares a favorite story about a PA they knew while on active duty, it reminds her of how she must live up to a very high standard.

"When she accepts a job, she takes it head on to ensure it gets done and that it's done right. She won't ever just sit on the sidelines if she knows of a better way to do something," said LTC Amelia Duran-Stanton, SP, PA-C, Ph.D., who served under Gross' command while the two were stationed at the Army Medical Department Center at Fort Sam in Houston.

Duran-Stanton said that no matter how high up the ranks Gross was, she always kept an eye out for the junior PAs who were doing great work and she sought ways to give them the recognition they deserved.

"You might assume that people at her level don't often think about those kinds of things anymore, but not COL Gross," Duran-Stanton said. "That only adds to the amount of respect people have for her, and you see that whenever she speaks because everyone stops what they're doing and listens intently."

"That's a sign of a great leader."

Logan Tietjen shot an 89 which placed him 11th.

Jackson Feulner shot 99; Hank Harris 101 and Carter Miller rounded out the lineup with a 115.

The team score of 375 placed them third with only eight shots out of second place.

The Titans were expected to host the Thayer Central Invite at Hebron Country Club May 10.

They will finish up their season by competing at districts.

That meet will be at Lincoln's Crooked Creek Golf Club May 15.

Dragons work on cutting scores

The TVC golf meet in Hastings May 4 saw the Deshler Dragons swing their best team score of the year with a 410.

Results were Heath Finke, 85, good for fourth place; Hutch Finke, 113; Damian Fayle, 117; and Aaron Buckles, 108.

Brenn said the team was fortunate to have a nice day to golf May 2 at the Sutton Invite.

The Dragons were scheduled to compete at the Thayer Central Invite May 10 and districts in Grand Island May 15.
