Belvidere

By LaDonna Avers

It was another busy week in Belvidere. Friday afternoon and Saturday morning several Woman's Club and Whistle Stop members took their time to decorate the hall and prepare to serve the crowd at the Johnny Ray Gomez show on Sunday. A good crowd attended to see him perform the songs so many of us remembered from the days when we could get out and dance the night away. Johnny's performance with the "magic" accordion, his cheerful banter as he kidded with the audience and of course his grand finale of "Sweet Caroline" in which the entire audience participated was well received. Snacks and soda was served and at the end of the afternoon the winners of the bidding contest at the silent auction were announced. A number of the Woman's Club and Whistle Stop members furnished items for the auction as did a number of Hebron and local businesses.

Lorna Waldmeier from Beatrice visited her family, Bonnie and Russ Priefert, in Belvidere last weekend. She spent the afternoon Sunday visiting friends and relatives in Hebron and Deshler and spent the night with the Prieferts.

Ruth Joachim entertained Kirk and Wanda Joachim over the weekend. Kevin, Colleen, Courtney and Joshua Joachim joined them all at the local cafe for Sunday dinner.

Linda Hudson and LaDonna Avers drove to Chester Wednesday night to enjoy Linda's belated birthday dinner at the cafe there.

On Thursday night the TEC group had supper at the cafe in Belvidere. This will be their last meeting for the winter.

The annual Lord's Acre celebration will be held in Belvidere next Sunday, Nov. 3. The United Church of Christ worship service will begin at 10 a.m. Following the service of grateful thanksgiving, the group will adjourn to the community center for a catered dinner and an afternoon of entertainment. The regular bi-monthly church meeting will also be held at that time.

MEETING NOTICE

The November meeting of the Belvidere Area Woman's Club will be held at the community center on Tuesday, Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. The original program has been delayed so the members will enjoy a One More Time jewelry show instead. The role call will be, my oldest or special piece of jewelry. Bring it to show if possible. Jackie Williamson will have the thought for the day with Marla Gerberding and Marilyn Cook as the hostesses.

Little Blue River Clearing Project Progressing

Courtesy Photo

Crews continue working along the Little Blue River to clear the area of noxious weeds, invasive plants and other debris.

The Little Blue River clearing project was moving through Nuckolls County the third week of October. In Nuckolls County alone 20 miles of the river will be cleared of debris along the banks and the river stream. The Twin Valley Weed Management Area is coordinating the project working with 49 cooperators in Nuckolls County.

A $568,000 grant was secured in February from the Environmental Trust to finish areas in the Republican River and Little Blue River from Webster County through Thayer County encompassing 125 miles and working with 270 cooperators along the Little Blue. "In Webster and Adams County there was fair cooperation with landowners, Clay County saw 100 percent participation and Nuckolls is at 96 percent," said Merle Illian, project coordinator.

"Current funds may run short going through clearing out river debris in Thayer County, but additional allocations from the Trust will be known in February to continue downstream," according to Illian.

The next phase of the project after the clearing process with backhoes will be spraying the willows in the spring along the banks and the islands of the river. Then the third phase the contractor will use discs to turn the roots of the willows to carry out the killing process of the invasive plant.

TVWMA members include county weed superintendents, Trailblazer RC&D, the Lower Republican and Little Blue NRD, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, other public agencies and private landowners. The group coordinates and assists with efforts to identify, contain and control the spread of noxious weeds and invasive plants.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Up to Congress Whether Weatherization Program Survives

The weatherization programs in Nebraska are federally funded to the State and then the State contracts with local private charities to operate the programs. The program helps those unable to afford the costs of insulating or otherwise improving their homes (often those on fixed incomes—disabled and elderly are priorities).

The program replaces furnaces, if there is a health risk, insulates and checks for carbon monoxide and other harmful elements in homes, seals a home and ensures safe ventilation when needed. It is free to those of lower incomes.

With the temporary extension (until January 15, 2014) of the federal appropriations by Congress, the Weatherization Assistance Program (WAP) in the Blue Valley Community Action Partnership (BVCA) area has three months to live. At that time, the Congressional budget continuing resolution decimates the program.

It may also keep in place the annual 5-8 percent across the board cuts. Last year it was 5 percent, this year it is said to be 8 percent for all but a few federal programs.

Because Congress passed a stimulus package for weatherization in 2009, they followed up by cutting the regular weatherization budget by 66 percent in 2012. At the time, there was still stimulus money available. Unfortunately, the stimulus funds ended in 2012, so the weatherization program is only a fraction of what it once was.

At Blue Valley Community Action, who operates the program under contract with the Nebraska Energy Office for this area, the cuts are fatal.

The program requires a job write-up by a crew member or contractor, a staff or contractors to do the actual installation work and an individual to inspect the work, who is not those doing the write-up or installation. With these cuts, at Blue Valley Community Action that means we have three staff and one contractor to do all of this, which is down from 12 staff at the end of last year.

At BVCA, our contract for 2013-2014 totals roughly $37,000 for the year — to pay for three staff, a contractor and materials, not to mention costs to get to the many homes of folks living in poorly insulated or sometimes unsafe homes. Even if we paid minimum wages we could not do what is required for a year.

Blue Valley Community Action Partnership is a local community partner and recognizes the need to restrain federal spending, but while most federal programs are asked to cut 5-8 percent each year, the Weatherization Assistance Program is being asked to cut 66 percent and then another 8 percent on top of that.

I hope the Nebraska delegation to Washington can restore some of the Weatherization Assistance Program funding so that helping seniors and disabled lower income families can continue in this area. Congressman Fortenberry, Congressman Smith, Senator Johanns and Senator Fischer you are the representatives in Washington covering the Blue Valley area of Nebraska.

Please hear our pleas for reasonableness. We want to do our part to improve our communities and are also willing to do what we can to keep costs down, but common sense tells us we cannot do it on pennies.

When the 2014 federal fiscal year (October 2013–September 30, 2014) budget is passed, whenever that happens, please restore enough of this valuable program so that the Weatherization Assistance Program can continue in this part of Nebraska as a year round program.

The Thayer Central C Team played Wilber in their final contest of the year at Hebron on Oct. 22, and beat the Wolverines 25-13, 25-9.

Hyeon Wang was once again the top server with 10 points.

Marissa Asche, Brinley Linton, Samantha Lange and Stacia Burkey played at the outside position and were the primary passers. At the middle position leading the team with kills and blocks were Grace Brinegar, Ashley Harms, Julie Johnson and Alexis Carr. Madison Mumm, Bailey Remmers and Kailey Call saw playing action on the right side and Hyeon played libero.

"I saw much improvement with the girls' skills over the season," said Thayer Central volleyball coach Carlece Kenner. "This young team did a nice job communicating and keeping the momentum too. Graduating seven seniors will open the door for many of these girls to earn some varsity playing time next year. Much will depend on how much the girls spend time in the off season perfecting their skill."

The team finished their season 8-4 and their 25-9 win against the Wolverines earned them another taco party.

The Thayer Central Junior Varsity team beat Wilber 25-

12 and 25-8 (earning them another taco party).

Hyeon Wang was top server in the contest with 13 points. Cheyanna Tietjen served seven points, Julie Johnson 6 points and Tiffany Walsh 5 points. The girls completely dominated this contest. Cheyanna led the team as setter.

"A successful team is led by a great setter," said Kenner "Cheyanna hustled to the ball each time giving the hitters every opportunity to score."

McKenna Tietjen and McCall Madsen led the team on hits from the outside and served as primary passers for the team. Jean Itzen played on the right side and backed up Cheyanna when needed. Tiffany and Grace Brinegar started in the middle and Hyeon came in the back as libero.

The girls finish the season with a 7-6 record.

Yard and Garden: Helping Out Bees and Butterflies

It is the end of the 2013 gardening season. Here is some information for you to think about as you reflect on this past summer's flower display and garden harvest.

Since 2006 we have heard about the unfortunate loss of honey bee colonies in North America and elsewhere. The decline in the number of bees is both shocking and frightening and blamed on a number of causes.

The National Gardening Bureau indicating that you can make a difference for bees and butterflies. When doing fall planting and thinking about what you might want to plant next spring, consider just one more container of flowers to help butterflies and bees.

Some ways that you can help the bees:

1. Plant flowers with open petals and upright stamens for easy access by our pollen-loving friends such as cosmos, and coneflowers.

2. Choose flowers that are heavy pollen producers like penstemon and salvia.

3. Some herbs such as oregano, fennel and parsley provide food for insects as well as humans so add them to your garden.

4. Limit or eliminate pesticide usage. Plant cover crops and use compost rather than relying on synthetic fertilizers.

5. Make sure your garden blooms from very early spring (crocus — plant some now.) to late fall (asters) to provide food as long as possible.

6. If you have open spaces like fields, road sides, etc., plant with native wildflower mixes.

7. Provide shelter from the elements such as standing grasses, flower stalks, shrubs, etc.

8. For bees, provide nesting spots such as open ground without mulch for ground-nesters.

9. Not all weeds need to be eradicated; see if the bees and butterflies are enjoying the buffet they offer and if they are, leave them be.

Ways you can help the butterflies:

1. Provide host plants such as milkweed for emerging Monarch caterpillars. Host plants will be munched on so don't be alarmed when you see nibbled leaves.

2. Butterflies love butterfly weed, buddleia, coneflower (Echinacea), aster and marigold.

3. Choose flowers that have easy access points for nectar sipping such as phlox, gailardia, and pentas.

4. Plant a variety of sun-loving annuals, perennials, wildflowers and shrubs as butterflies prefer sunny spots and they love a wide range of flower colors as well.

5. Provide sheltered resting spaces such as a flat rock in a sunny spot.

6. Butterflies sip water so make sure there is a shallow tray with damp sand and rocks to land on.

7. Encourage neighbors and your community to plant open spaces with low-maintenance native wildflowers and perennials.

As you make your fall or spring planting, think about planting some of the plants that bees and butterflies enjoy. Your butterfly gardening NebGuide can be found at: <http://www.ianrpubs.unl.edu/epublic/live/g1183/build/g1183.pdf>. It contains a list of suggested plants.

and/or environmental practices utilized? What is the plan for needed improvements? Every contract or lease agreement will one day terminate; how is termination to be handled? What method(s) will be used to settle accounts?

UNL Extension faculty have formulated a checklist to help tenants and landlords consider components of a well-designed lease agreement. It is advisable to have an attorney for one party prepare the lease and an attorney for the other party review it. You can find this information at: <http://go.unl.edu/57ts>

ServSafe Food Handler Program: Extension is blessed with people knowledgeable about a variety of topics! Here is an opportunity for a food safety program being brought to our area.

Food safety is in the news and on the minds of many people. Numerous foodborne illnesses have occurred in Nebraska during the last year — including E.coli, Salmonella, and Hepatitis A. Most of the reported foodborne illness outbreaks have occurred from food eaten away from the home. ServSafe Food Handler Program is a program developed by the National Restaurant Association to address the growing food safety concerns of consumers for the food service staff that serve them.

The University of Nebraska-Extension will be hosting ServSafe Food Handler Program November 6 in Hebron at the Thayer County Courthouse, 225 N. 4th, Hebron, from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Class instructor is Amy Peterson MS, RD from UNL Extension in Polk County.

The ServSafe Food Handler Program provides the resources to help keep food safety as an essential ingredient in every meal by providing basic food safety information to help prevent food borne illness. Participants will receive a certificate of completion after successfully passing certification.

Continuing education credit is available for dietitians, diet technicians, and dietary managers. To register and for questions, please contact Amy Peterson, Extension Educator, at 402-747-2321 or email: apeterson3@unl.edu.

T.C. TeamMates Board Establishes Strategic Plan

TeamMates of Thayer Central gathered board members to establish a strategic plan and set a vision for their program. The vision for TeamMates of Thayer Central is to serve 40 youth by October 2016 and create a positive culture of mentoring.

TeamMates Executive Director Suzanne Hince and Regional Coordinator Allyson Horne were on hand to provide the training. "I am very excited about the vision for TeamMates of Thayer Central. The chapter has great leadership, strong matches and are dedicated to youth in the community," said Hince.

The TeamMates Mentoring Program transforms lives by providing a team of experts to train, match and support mentors and mentees. Mentors meet one hour per week at the school and are asked to develop a friendship with youth by having lunch together, playing games, working on projects or just talking. Mentors help identify the natural strengths and talents of youth.

Community members interested in mentoring or supporting the program should contact Emily Seifert at 402-768-6117 or e-mail her at: emily.seifert@thayercentral.org

The TeamMates Mentoring Program currently serves over 6,000 youth in over 110 chapters across Nebraska and Iowa.

To join the team and be a mentor, call 1-877-531-8326 or go to www.teammates.org.

Jump the Curve

Yesterday, at the Nebraska Broadband Conference futurist, author of "Jump the Curve" and keynote speaker Jack Ulrich told about the speed of change that is occurring in our world and the development of technology is helping to speed up the change.

Ulrich told the audience that we as humankind will continue to do the things we need to do, but technology will change the way we do things. He suggests we be alert to future changes and "Jump the Curve" to take advantage of opportunities that will be coming.

For example, we may have seen news stories about 3D printers that scan a picture and then actually print out small items in three dimensional. In Minnesota, 3D printers are now making combine parts which may be part of the 2013 harvest in our county fields.

Next year Google Glass will be sold to the public. Glass looks like a small pair of glasses that you wear. In the upper right corner is a computer. When you want to know something you just ask the glass to give you the information. "How many miles do I have to drive to get to Omaha?" And Glass will reply with the distance according to your GPS position.

A surgeon, who specializes in a particular field and sits at his desk in one city, can guide hospital staff in another city that is doing surgery. They all wear Google Glass and the surgeon at the desk sees exactly the same thing as the surgeon at the operating table as the surgery is underway.

Robotics and sensors will be embedded into things. Just this week we heard on TV about driver-less cars that could prevent accidents. Who would drive that? Just consider how helpful that would be to great-grandmother to allow her to live in her home longer.

It may be that the senior citizen must move and lose their independence because they can no longer drive to purchase groceries. With the driverless car, the person can safely drive to church and get the items they need.

One example of sensors embedded is the newly constructed bridge that collapsed a few years ago killing people in their cars. The new bridge has 400 sensors that continually tell road engineers about the status and stresses the bridge is undergoing and can warn of future danger. "Jump the Curve" is predicting that there will be microscopic sensors embedded into a person's blood stream and will call the person's cell phone to alert of an impending heart attack.

The world is filled with challenges that can become opportunities for the people who are alert and "Jump the Curve."

TC Students Accepted To NMEA All-State Chorus

Thayer Central Community School students from left, Tashia Mumm, Madison Reece and Rachel Heitmann, were accepted to the Nebraska Music Educators Association (NMEA) All-State Chorus.

Each year, approximately 3,000 of the best high school musicians in the state audition for the Nebraska All-State Band, Chorus, Jazz Band and Orchestra which are sponsored by the Nebraska Educators Association. Selection as a member of one of these groups is one of the highest musical honors attainable in Nebraska.

Matt King, chair of choral affairs for the Nebraska Music Educators Association, has announced that Rachel Heitmann, second soprano; Tashia Mumm, first alto, and Madison Reece, second alto; are among the 440 students selected to be a part of the 2013 All-State Chorus. Benjamin Hintz, second bass was selected as first alternate.

Guest conductor for the group will be Andre J. Thomas – the Owen F. Sellers Professor of Music, is director of choral activities and professor of choral music education at Florida State University. The chorus will rehearse Thursday, November 21, through Saturday, November 23, at the UNL Glenn Korff School of Music.

A final public concert will be held on Saturday, November 23, at the Lied Center for the Performing Arts on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus.

T.C. Quilt Guild Notes

The Thayer County Quilt Guild met on Oct. 17 at Courtyard Terrace. The program for the evening was given by Lynn Greer, a member from Edgar, who spoke about the importance of value (the lightness and darkness of the colors in quilt fabrics) and showed many examples of her work and how she used or didn't use value effectively.

President Patty Day asked members who attended Threads Across Nebraska, a Nebraska State Quilt Guild sponsored event which was held in Kearney on Oct. 11 and 12, to report on it. Valerie Bard from Hardy, Monica Meerktz from Deshler, and Gloria Bernadt and Barb Blincow from Hebron had quilts that were displayed at the event.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 21. The guest speaker will be Linda Glissen from The Quilt Basket in York who will be sharing some of her favorite rulers.

Your Guide To A Perfect Wedding
BRIDAL BOUTIQUE
Why Professional Photographers May be Your Best Choice
Digital cameras have largely replaced traditional cameras, and even those who do not use digital cameras can no doubt use their smartphones or other devices to take pretty good photos. Capturing and sharing life's memorable or even mundane moments, be it a child's humorous antics, a meal enjoyed out on the town or just a lazy moment at home, has become the norm, and the digital revolution has turned so many people into budding photographers. But as capable as amateur photographers can be, there are still those moments that are best captured by the professionals.
The benefits of hiring a professional photographer to capture life's more memorable moments, whether it's a wedding, birthday or family portrait, are many. Professional photographers' creativity, experience and insight as to what makes a great photo is an invaluable asset. Professionals analyze their shots and know how to create the unique images their clients want. When you have only one chance to capture an important moment, professional photographers can provide peace of mind and quality photos.
Professionals use intricate, expensive equipment and specially constructed studios, and they know how to manipulate lenses, lighting and various accessories to achieve the desired shots. Furthermore, photographers know how to adjust apertures and shutter speeds to capture everything from portraits to action shots. Most photographers have a rapport working with people and can get even the most camera-shy individual to embrace the camera.
After spending time with clients during the photography session, professionals often spend several hours uploading the images and editing them to present a diverse gallery of retouched images. Photographers then spend more time working with you and going over options for photo effects and how to best display the images. Even after images have been enhanced, further tweaking may be done on ordered prints, especially if a special effect is desired.
When photos are ready to be printed, professional photographers use a trusted "pro lab" that offers top-of-the line equipment. This can produce prints that are far superior to those printed at a supermarket or drug store. The lab can use specialty paper to ensure your photo lasts through the years and produces the best colors and sharpness.
Because such extensive effort is put into professional photos, working with a photographer will be more expensive than taking photos and printing them yourself. Some photo clients are surprised at the costs quoted to them by a professional photographer and even scoff at such high prices. However, those costs cover the time commitment on the photographer's part, the use of high-end and often expensive equipment, and professional editing, which explains the high price for professional work.
Unlike amateurs, professional photographers are often skilled in various styles, ensuring the photos you want will be the ones you end up getting, whether you want contemporary, photojournalistic or traditional photos.
In those instances when a person wants to capture a momentous occasion and be ensured the best results, only a professional photographer will do.
