3D Mammography captures multiple slices of dense breast tissue, giving radiologists accurate photos to examine. The machine, purchased by Thayer County Health Services, reduces false positives and is a more comfortable procedure for patients than 2D.

New machine limits false positives

Thayer County Health Services newest purchase in radiology screening scraps the 2D version for a more precise, 3D look in mammographical images, layer by layer.

Instead of producing four images per exam, the machine kicks out 80 per exposure. Radiologic technologist, Shelly Pulliam, said she is now sending 350 images to the radiologist for examination.

The basic difference from 2D to 3D is how the images are captured. The 3D machine is capturing multiple images as the machine moves.

"Some people compare it to pages in a book," Pulliam said. "It's millimeter layer by millimeter layer of seeing breast tissue."

She said it's like a blueberry muffin — blueberries aren't usually visible until the muffin is sliced open.

Pulliam is certified in mammography, the only branch of her job that requires board certification. She sees approximately eight to 10 patients any given day.

"The 3D makes appointments quicker," she said.

She has also heard patients say the machine is more comfortable than its predecessors.

"It's because they made changes with the machine. When it compresses, it conforms to your body, versus the machine pressing so the body conforms to it," Pulliam said.

To become certified, Pulliam completed a quarter's worth of classes, including 150 hours with a certified technologist and then another 30 to 40 hours with the radiologist.

She then passed the board exam, which is regulated by federal and state governments because mammography is a screening procedure.

It may be too soon for success rates on 3D exams, however, Pulliam learned in class the machine limits appointment recalls by 30 percent.

"Recalls are when a patient has to come back," Pulliam said. "We can eliminate the money and anxiety of having to return."

Soldiers remembered at Belvidere

A Service of Dedication by the Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War was held as part of Belvidere's annual Fall Festival Sunday.

As the rain misted in cool temperatures mixed with wind, a ceremony at the Belvidere Rural Cemetery marked the graves of three Civil War veterans — Private Richard Furry, Private William McKillip and Corporal John Williams.

All three soldiers were enlisted with the Grand Army of the Republic Morton Post No. 17 in Hebron.

Furry was with Co. H 74th Indiana Infantry and Co. A, 22nd Indiana Infantry from 1861 to 1865.

He married Susan Blaisdall Nov. 11, 1855. After the Civil War, Furry was moved to Fayette, Iowa, then to Minnesota. His wife died in 1904. He moved to Hebron and later lived with his adopted son, Edgar, who is buried in Fairbury.

McKillip was with Co. K 85th Illinois Infantry from August of Thayer County Museum Curator Jackie Williamson was recognized for her persistence in marking the graves of Civil War veterans. Williamson said there are 38 graves of Civil War veterans in the Belvidere Rural Cemetery and they are all marked unless another one is discovered.

1862 to 1863 after registering for a three-year enlistment. He served through the Kentucky campaign and was discharged at Benton Barracks, Mo., for disability.

McKillip was born in Indiana and raised in Illinois. He was a farmer and married Cassandra in about

Mid America Vision takes on new look

Dr. Andrea Steele-Baumann officially ushered in Mid America Vision Center as her own with an open house and ribbon cutting Sept. 27.

She took ownership in January, and went through a full office renovation that was completed over the summer.

"We had been talking for a few years about making the transition," she said about the previous owner.

Steele-Baumann is originally from Fairbury, but has commuted from her family's home in Wilber to Hebron for nine years.

In addition to a new look for the office, Steele-Baumann also has new examination equipment, including a new retinal camera that is also new to optometry.

The $72,000 machine captures actual color photos of the retina. It opens the eye up for Steele-Baumann, and she is able to examine the eye from multiple angles.

"I can look at every part I need to. It helps with screening and to manage more eye diseases," she said.

The machine also lets Steele-Baumann see how patients' eyes may have changed from the previous year, such as if diseases progressed.

She sees patients for eye infections, allergy eyes and glaucoma as well.

The open house celebrated her ownership and gave guests

Subway under new ownership

Three couples are the new owners of three Subways in Hebron, Geneva and Superior — Eric and Teresa Bruggeman; Brandon and Melissa Bruggeman and Cory and Jaci Kruse.

General Manager Chad Essex of Doniphan said more than anything, the new store owners want to provide customer service in a clean environment with a good product.

"We want to do all the things you think about when you visit a restaurant," Essex said.

That includes promotions and health-conscious products, like the Loyalty program and a new bread, Sunflower Crunch.

"We're promoting wraps right now," Essex said.

Subway customizes salads and the soups have arrived to feature two per day. Manager Jennifer Clauson of Ruskin already had the loaded baked potato and cheese soup ready to go.

Essex said they are also trying to partner with the community in different ways.

Subway features inexpensive footlongs and Waffle Cone Wednesdays. Catering is also an option. Hours for the Hebron store are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week.

The store is currently seeking three to four people to fill positions.

Previous owner, Jeff Overturf, had up to 27 stores for more than 15 years, stretching from Lincoln to the Pandhandle. He sold the Kearney and Hastings locations as well.

The new owners say their focus will be community involvement,

HELLO October! How did you get here so fast? The month that hath 30 days is now gone. October has arrived and with it, a vast array of different weather conditions.

The museum's big day, after months of planning, was greeted with rainy, cold conditions for most of the day. After a 90-degree day the week before, the weather went on a yo-yo effect and there is forecast of the same thing happening this coming week.

Once again as many have learned down through the years, it has proved that no one can control Mother Nature. Guess that must be why it is such a popular subject with everyone. Nebraska football learned that two weeks ago and now the vendors, car show people, etc., have suffered the same lesson.

Many wonderful activities were planned among them being the Civil War presentation, but once again the audience was limited. Anyone who lives here knows how the weather affects our lives. No different than the farmer raising an ideal crop and then watching it destroyed by hail and wind.

It was a sad day as the Bay-singer boys announced they would not be raising and selling pumpkins next year. Seems as though the oldest will be in college and this was his project to help pay for college. Their last year ended on a bit of a sour note as the rains that came in September played havoc with their crop this year as many laid in patches of weather which helped contribute to softness under the pumpkins. Isaac left the old wagon with flowers on the Museum with a nice arrangement of fall colored pumpkins.

Speaking of weather, the country of Indonesia once again got slammed with an earthquake and then that caused the tsunami which has killed over 1000 residents. Once again proving what is in charge. This country lays in a so called Ring of Fire that is a 25,000 mile horseshoe shaped rock accounting for about 90 percent of the country.

The floor at the Community Center will once again be shiny and bright as it is being refurbished this week. Thanks to all who helped who helped move the chairs, tables, etc., on Sunday and then again this Wednesday evening. It will then be ready for all the Fall activities.

The Hudson girls returned from the Ak-Sar-Ben cattle show on Sunday night. This is the end of the season for cattle showing for this year. They reported there was much stiff competition as the show draws exhibitors from many states.

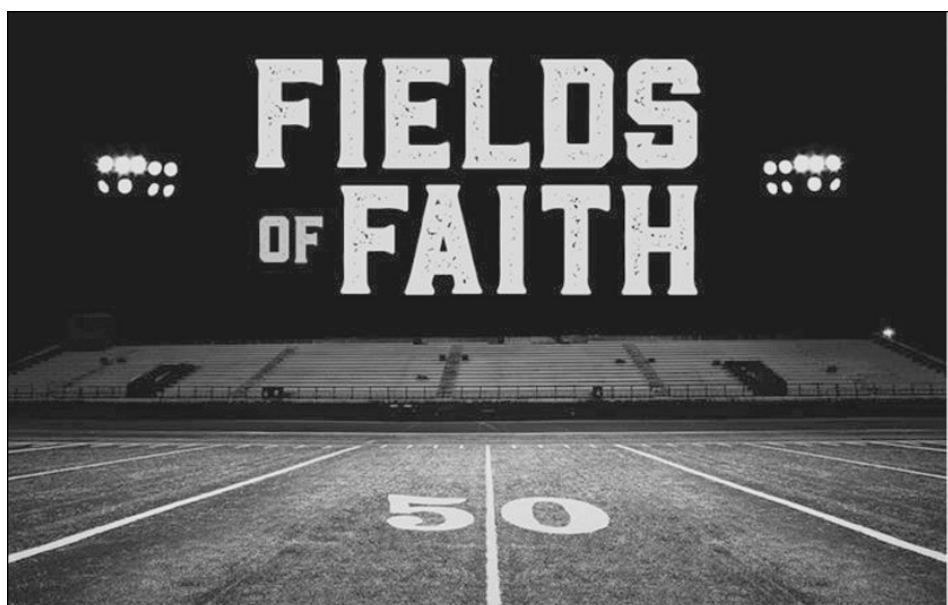

Peggy Meerse filled the pulpit this weekend Sunday at the United Church of Christ.

Kent and Jackie Williamson had a busy week. They were in Lincoln on Friday to watch their grandchildren, Abbie and Collin Schmidt, run in a cross country meet at Pioneer's Park. They drove home Friday night and Kent drove back to Lincoln on Saturday to attend the Nebraska-Purdue football game. Cain Schmidt attended the game with him.

They were also glad to have some of their family visiting over the past weekend to attend the Thayer County Museum's annual Fall Festival and also to attend the Dedication Ceremony which was held at the Belvidere Cemetery Sunday morning. The impressive ceremony was conducted by the Sons of Civil War Union Veterans and the Daughters of Civil War Union Veterans. Jackie, with the help of her sister Jan Carr of Dallas, Texas, did the research and necessary paperwork to get government issued markers placed on three previously unmarked Civil War soldier's graves in the Cemetery: Pvt. Richard Furry, Pvt. William McKillip and Cpl. John W. Williams. Jackie was asked to say a few words at the ceremony. Their daughter, Jill Grueber, drove down from Lincoln on Saturday night. Their daughter, Joni, drove down on Sunday morning with her children, Abbie, Collin, and Cain. Schmidt and Celia Schutz, their son, Jeff, his wife, daughter, Shannon Pospisal and her children, Nora and Henry of Omaha, arrived in time to eat lunch and enjoy the Festival. It was great having all of them.

This Saturday, the Huskers travel to Wisconsin and the No. 3 volleyball girls meet No. 5 Minnesota. John Cook tried to get the volleyball game change the hour they played so both games could be watched but the opposing team, Minnesota would not change. So fans will have to make a choice as to which one to watch. Would it be possible to ask for a win for Scott Frost and the football team? We've got to keep our spirits up. The volleyball team seems to help.

You're invited to the Thayer Central football field, but not for a Titan game. Wednesday, October 10, at 7 p.m., the Thayer Central FCA (Fellowship of Christian Athletes) and Hebron Bible SLX (Student Life Extreme) are hosting an event called Fields of Faith. Fields of Faith is sponsored by FCA and is held across America. Events include speakers, testimonies and live music.

Fields of Faith was started in 2004 by Jeff Martin. As an FCA area director in Oklahoma, Martin had grown frustrated with seeing youth being passive. He envisioned this event as a platform for kids to be leaders and challenge their peers.

"Fields of Faith is an opportunity for the community of Hebron and the surrounding communities to grow in their relationship with Jesus Christ. We are hopeful hearing others' testimonies and the word of God will have a positive impact for those in attendance," said Mark Leonard, Thayer Central FCA's group leader.

This year's speakers will include a high school student, a UNK cross country runner, and Curtis Fry, founder of the C.H.O.I.C.E.S. ministry. Music will be provided by the worship team from Hebron Bible.

Although this event is being hosted by youth organizations, everyone is invited. If there is inclement weather, the event will be held at the Majestic Theatre in downtown Hebron.

Building consumer confidence in agriculture through our youth

It is increasingly important to educate not only adults, but also youth where and how food is produced. Agriculture is the backbone of our economy and everyone everyday uses agriculture products, yet agriculture is taken for granted. As each generation becomes more distant from production agriculture, it is essential to teach youth the importance of agriculture and how their food is produced.

Livestock Ag-Venture is a program that promotes the agricultural and, more specifically, the beef industry by teaching youth the importance of the industry and educating them on agricultural issues.

This annual educational program is hosted by the South Central Cattle Women in partnership with the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension. This is the 21st year of the program, which was held at the Fillmore County Fairgrounds in Geneva on September 10. This year 144 fourth graders participated from Fillmore Central, Shickley, Bruning-Davenport, Superior, Thayer Central, Sutton Christian, Deshler Lutheran and Meridian schools.

During this event, participants learned the purpose and workings of an auction market through a Mock

One of the highlights for many youth is the opportunity to experience livestock firsthand. Shickley FFA members Brock Swartzendruber and Reid Richards let youth touch baby pigs.

Auction simulation in which the participants "bid" on animals. Nine concurrent sessions were presented which included topics that taught where their food comes from, by-products we get from cattle, how grains get used in a variety of products used every day, animal nutrition, how aquifers work, and a hands-on roping demonstration addressing animal welfare. Youth also participated in a barnyard tour where they learned about different species of animals.

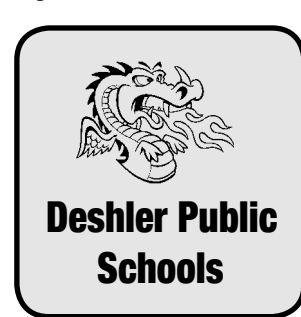

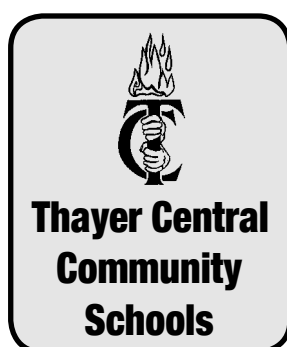

Fillmore Central, Shickley, Bruning-Davenport and Thayer Central FFA members also contributed to the event by serving as group leaders and helping in setting up for the event.

Lunch was provided for all participants. Numerous area businesses helped sponsor this event and special thanks to the Fillmore County Ag Society members who provided use of the facilities.

It was an enjoyable experience for all involved and provided everyone the opportunity to learn about the beef industry, agriculture and its importance in Nebraska.
