

Biofuels

For a better environment, ethanol is the way to go

Not only does ethanol come from a renewable resource like corn, but it contains 35 percent oxygen – and that boost in oxygen results in more complete combustion within the engine, which reduces tailpipe emissions.

“By replacing regular gasoline with ethanol, you also replace a fuel that includes benzene and other carcinogens with one that is renewable and clean,” said Tim Scheer, a farmer from St. Paul and a member of the Nebraska Corn Board. “Ethanol is non-toxic, water soluble and quickly biodegradable. It’s simply a cleaner fuel and the more we can use, the better we’ll be.”

Ethanol is essentially derived from plants – corn in most cases across Nebraska and the country. As those corn plants grow, they soak up greenhouse gases like carbon dioxide. In fact, one acre of corn absorbs some 8 tons of greenhouse gasses, which, according to the Environmental Protection Agency, is more than what is produced by the average car every year.

“You can’t say that about petroleum,” Scheer said. “Pollutants and greenhouse gases are released at every step of petroleum production, from drilling for oil to refining to burning it in a car. Petroleum is simply dirty and getting dirtier. Ethanol is moving the opposite direction. It’s clean and getting cleaner.”

University of Nebraska research showed that ethanol directly emits an average of 51 percent less greenhouse gas than gasoline – as much as three times the reduction reported in earlier research that used old ethanol plant numbers and dated corn yield data. That same study showed that for every gallon of petroleum-based fuel used in the entire corn-to-ethanol production life cycle, 13 gallons of ethanol are produced.

According to the latest figures compiled by the Renewable Fuels Association from a model developed by Argonne National Laboratory, the production and use of 10.6 billion gallons of ethanol last year reduced carbon dioxide equivalent greenhouse emissions by 16.5 million metric tons across the country. That’s the equivalent of taking more than 2.7 million cars off the road.

Scheer said ethanol also reduces tailpipe carbon monoxide emissions by as much as 30 percent, toxics by 13 percent and cut tailpipe fine particulate matter in half.

“Corn production will continue to trend up and so will the efficiency of ethanol plants. When you combine those two points with the fact that ethanol is simply a cleaner fuel than gas, and the benefits of ethanol really add up on the environmental front,” said Kelly Brunkhorst, the Nebraska Corn Board’s director of research.

Despite this, he said, some people try to argue that ethanol is no better than gasoline made from oil. “I really can’t even fathom that thought process,” he said. “Ethanol performs better than petroleum-based gasoline on every environmental criteria, and it’s only getting better.”

Ethanol workers earn more than other industries

Growth in wages in the ethanol sector outpaced all industry wage growth in the past decade, increasing by more than 58 percent.

According to the Nebraska Department of Labor, average pay in the ethanol sector has increased from $35,479 in 2000 to $56,158 in 2010. Meanwhile, the statewide average pay for all industries in Nebraska was $37,319 in 2010.

While the recession has caused stagnating pay or job reductions in some industries, the ethanol industry has helped keep the Midwest’s economy robust, said Nebraska Ethanol Board Administrator Todd Sneller.

“Ethanol is vital to Nebraska’s economy,” said Sneller. “The ethanol industry has created thousands of jobs while saving drivers money and burning more cleanly than gasoline.”

Another study from NPPD has found that Nebraska’s ethanol industry has directly created over 1,300 jobs, saved drivers $200 million through lower fuel prices, and created $3.5 billion in total economic output. State and local governments have collected over $30 million in new tax revenues created by the ethanol industry.

Catherine Lang, the Nebraska Commissioner of Labor, said the ethanol industry has been a boon for the state’s economic development.

“A vibrant rural economy is vital for the economic success of Nebraska. The ethanol industry provides high skill, high wage jobs for citizens across Nebraska. The industry has been a strong partner along with our educational institutions, assuring that there are education and training programs to develop the skilled workforce to support and maintain this important industry in Nebraska,” Lang said.

Sneller said the ethanol industry has had an especially positive economic impact in rural areas.

“The ethanol industry has indirectly created over 3,000 jobs, many of these in rural areas where higher than average wages have an even greater impact,” Sneller said.

Ag Secretary Vilsack announces expanding biofuels

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack has announced that USDA will make payments to more than 160 energy producers in 41 states to support and ensure the production and expansion of advanced biofuels.

“Renewable energy production will create tens of thousands of direct, American jobs; thousands more indirect jobs, and clean electricity to power millions of homes. The payments I am announcing represent the continuing commitment of the Obama administration to work with producers to provide the bio-fuel necessary to reduce our nation’s dependence on foreign energy sources,” Vilsack said. “The payments support America’s growing advanced biofuel industry.”

The payments are authorized under the Bioenergy Program for Advanced Biofuels (Section 9005 of the 2008 Farm Bill) and are made to eligible producers to support and ensure an expanding production of advanced biofuels. Payments are based on the amount of biofuels a recipient produces from renewable biomass, other than corn kernel starch. Eligible examples include biofuels derived from cellulose, crop residue, animal, food and yard waste material, biogas (landfill and sewage waste treatment gas), vegetable oil and animal fat.

Forexample, Ever Cat Fuels has been selected to receive a $98,507 contract payment to help offset the costs of producing almost 881,000 gallons of biodiesel at its plant in Isanti, Minn. Ever Cat uses the Mcgyan process to produce biodiesel, which efficiently and economically converts feedstock plant oils and animal fats to biodiesel. Ever Cat produces three million gallons of biodiesel annually and is the first commercial plant designed to use the Mcgyan technology. The plant began operations two years ago, creating 20 full-time jobs.

In Corinth, ME, Corinth Wood Pellets was selected to receive a $31,406 contract payment continue to produce and sell premium-grade wood pellets for the residential, industrial and commercial markets. The wood pellets are produced from sawdust and woodchip feedstock.

A total of 18,224 metric tons of wood pellets were produced to generate 298,873,600,000 BTUs. This energy generation supports the Obama administration’s ongoing efforts to reduce our reliance on fossil fuels by turning solid feedstock into alternative fuel that is used to heat residential, industrial and commercial buildings. USDA funding for this enterprise is expected to support 11 industry jobs.

On Sept. 8, President Obama presented the American Jobs Act in an address to Congress. The purpose of the American Jobs Act is simple: put more people back to work and put more money in the pockets of working Americans. The American Jobs Act is specific. It will put people back to work right now, and it will not add to the deficit. Through a combination of direct spending, such as infrastructure investments, and tax relief, such as an extension of the payroll tax cuts, it will lead to new American jobs.

Since taking office, President Obama’s administration has taken significant steps to improve the lives of rural Americans and has provided broad support for rural communities. The Obama administration has set goals of modernizing infrastructure by providing broadband access to 10 million Americans, expanding educational opportunities for students in rural areas, and providing affordable health care. In the long term, these unparalleled rural investments will help ensure that America’s rural communities are repopulating, self-sustaining and thriving economically.

USDA, through its Rural Development mission area, administers and manages housing, business and community infrastructure and facility programs through a national network of state and local offices. Rural Development has an existing portfolio of more than $155 billion in loans and loan guarantees. These programs are designed to improve the economic stability of rural communities, businesses, residents, farmers and ranchers and improve the quality of life in rural America.

Ethanol takes advantage of ever expanding corn yields

Seven of the largest U.S. corn yields and largest corn crops in history all occurred in the last seven years and since 2000, average national yields have increased from 136.9 bushels per acre to 164.7 bushels in 2009 – a 20 percent increase over the time period.

At the same time, plant breeding experts estimate corn yields may jump 40 percent before 2020 and, perhaps, hit a national average of 300 bushels per acre by 2030.

“Some wonder if such yields are possible on a national scale, but the average yield of National Corn Yield Contest winners last year was 307 bushels per acre,” said Bob Dickey, a farmer from Laurel and member of the Nebraska Corn Board and National Corn Board. “Contest winners are usually ahead of the curve and over time others catch up, so I’d say it is certainly possible we’ll see 200, 250 and maybe 300 bushels per acre in the future.”

These higher yields will mean crops of 14 billion bushels, 15 billion bushels and more – all from the same number of acres. In fact, corn production passed 13 billion bushels for the first time in 2007, but it passed 13 billion again in 2009 – and did so on 8 percent fewer acres than 2007 thanks to improved yields.

“The upward trend in corn production is how corn farmers are comfortably able to promote ethanol while knowing traditional markets will continue to have plenty of corn, too,” Dickey said. “Ethanol has helped support rural communities through continued economic investments while providing an important market for our growing supply of corn.”

Corn production trends have been rising for decades as farmers have adopted better management practices and corn genetics improved. Knowing that production was outstripping demand, farmers used their corn checkoff dollars to support new uses and new markets for corn. A breakthrough in the 1970s was ethanol for fuel – and the timing couldn’t have been better thanks to an energy crisis gripping the nation following an oil embargo.

“While the ethanol industry was in its infancy, the oil industry killed it by spreading myths and lobbying in D.C. They didn’t want the competition. It would take another decade before ethanol could get started again in earnest,” said Dickey. “Yet even then the oil industry funded campaigns against ethanol. It wasn’t until 2005 when we finally got serious and passed the first Renewable Fuels Standard that would start us down the right path.”

The push toward renewable fuels went even further in 2007 when the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 was signed into law. Known as RFS2, this legislation significantly increases the use of corn-based ethanol – from 9.0 billion gallons in 2008 to 15.0 billion in 2015.

That target – 15 billion gallons – was in line with what corn farmers knew was reasonable with corn yield and production trends.

“As hybrids caught on in the 1940s, yields shot up, and with the technology available to corn breeders today, yields continue to advance rapidly,” Dickey said. “We’ve learned so much about the corn plant and recently decoded its genome that the future is fairly wide open for yields. We’re fortunate to have such a positive new market like biofuels to take advantage of that.”

Ethanol production also provides a valuable feed ingredient

Some of Jon Holzfaster’s corn ends up at a corn-based ethanol plant – and the cattle in his cattle feeding operation couldn’t be happier for what they get in return.

That return, Holzfaster, a farmer from Paxton, explained, is distillers grains – a feed ingredient produced by corn-based ethanol plants. “Cattle love it, and they perform very well when it is in their feed,” he said.

Ethanol production, he explained, is essentially a two for one bargain. “We get fuel and feed, not one or the other,” said Holzfaster, a member of the Nebraska Corn Board.

Corn-based ethanol is made from field corn – yellow corn that’s comprised of starch, fiber, protein and oil. Since the ethanol process only uses the starch, those other components are available for other uses, including feed.

“Ethanol production really gives us two products and both are important and valuable, and both add value to that initial kernel of corn,” said Dennis Gengenbach, a farmer from Smithfield who chairs the Nebraska Corn Board’s research committee.

With the large livestock production sector in Nebraska, particularly the cattle industry, it makes sense to have a large ethanol sector as well. “Ethanol plants add value to corn once, and then livestock add value again by consuming distillers grains and converting it into high-value cuts of meat,” Gengenbach said. “The more value we can capture in the state from that initial bushel of corn, the more positive an impact it has on the state’s economy as a whole.”

At an ethanol plant, every bushel of corn yields about 2.8 gallons of ethanol and nearly 18 pounds of distillers grains. About 5 million metric tons of distillers grains are expected to be produced in Nebraska this year – nationally, some 33 million metric tons are expected to be produced. According to an estimate from Iowa State University, those 33 million metric tons will replace more than 1 billion bushels of corn in livestock rations.

Distillers grains has a high feed value because it concentrates many of the nutrients found in regular corn. “It brings a lot of value to the feed, and it can also lower feed costs, including the cost of grain for cattle on feed,” Gengenbach said. “This is why cattle producers include 40 or 50 percent distillers grains in their rations when they can.”

Research funded by the Nebraska Corn Board also shows opportunities for feeding distillers grains to cattle on forage, like in a cow-calf operation. “Research has helped identify some of the methods and benefits to feeding distillers grains to cattle on forage,” Gengenbach said. “There may be an opportunity there for cattle producers who have access to distillers grains.”

To help spread the word about feeding of distillers grains to cattle on forage, the Nebraska Corn Board partnered with the University of Nebraska to develop Feeding Corn Milling Co-Products to Forage Fed Cattle, a publication released this summer. It is available at no cost from the Nebraska Corn Board in both printed form and online at www.NebraskaCorn.org.

To help advance the feeding of distillers grains to beef cattle, the Nebraska Corn Board is working with the University to finalize a third edition of the publication Utilization of Corn Co-Products in the Beef Industry. This new edition will contain the latest research on feeding distillers grains to cattle and is the culmination of a stepped-up research commitment between the University and the Corn Board over the last three years.

Publications including Utilization of Corn Co-Products in the Dairy Industry and Storage of Wet Corn Co-Products are also available.

“Ethanol production means a great deal to the state and the feed products produced by ethanol plants are an important component of that,” Holzfaster said. “Distillers grains ties the ethanol and livestock industries together in a positive way.”

Report: Ethanol supply lowers gas prices by 25¢ per gallon

A study published by the Iowa State University Center for Agricultural and Rural Development has found that the past decade of growth in ethanol production has reduced gasoline prices by an average of $0.25 per gallon. The Midwest region experienced the biggest impact, with a $0.39 per gallon reduction in gas prices.

The study also found that gas prices would jump from 41 percent to 92 percent if domestic ethanol production was immediately stopped.

Without the U.S. ethanol supply, gas could have increased by more than $1 per gallon in the Midwest region.

“Drivers already know that you save money by buying ethanol fuels,” said Todd

Sneller, Nebraska Ethanol Board Administrator. “But ethanol is saving consumers even more money by lowering the price of gasoline.” More than 85 percent of the gasoline sold in Nebraska contains ethanol.

More and more drivers are choosing renewable fuels like ethanol over gas. Nebraska has more than 60 E85 and ethanol blender pumps, where Flex Fuel Vehicle drivers can fill up with ethanol blends up to 85 percent ethanol.

“The addition of new blender pumps in Nebraska, coupled with additional ethanol fuel choices, will continue to provide cost savings to drivers while retaining energy dollars in the economy,” Sneller said.

Nebraska Corn Board and Nebraska Ethanol Board promote ethanol during state fair

The Nebraska Corn Board and Nebraska Ethanol Board partnered at the 142nd Nebraska State Fair to promote ethanol and flex fuel vehicles.

August 26 marked the beginning of the Nebraska State Fair and vendor booths from each agency were set up in the exhibition building to focus on flex fuel vehicles (FFV), ethanol education and blender pump promotions.

The Nebraska Ethanol Board focused on FFV awareness and the benefits ethanol production brings to the local, state, and national economy. There were also pictures of several ethanol plants that are located throughout the state of Nebraska.

A history of ethanol timeline was displayed in the Nebraska Corn Board booth along with a blender pump display, jars of corn representing corn production from 1930, 2011 and the future, and a video showing the faces of Nebraska farmers.

“There are approximately 100,000 FFVs in Nebraska and nearly 90 percent of consumers don’t know they drive a flex fuel vehicle,” said Kim Clark, ag program manager from the Nebraska Corn Board. “The Nebraska State Fair was a great opportunity to educate consumers from all parts of the state about flex fuel vehicles and ethanol.”

Todd Sneller, administrator of the Nebraska Ethanol Board said, “Ethanol is a cleaner, more inexpensive, renewable alternative to gasoline. Drivers want fuel choice, and high ethanol blend fuels like E85 allows them to save money, support Nebraska’s economy, and reduce pollution.”

Voice of the Titans

By Bub Peithmann

Welcome back. It’s homecoming week when the students have fun and everyone looks for alumni to come back and visit.

On Friday, the annual parade started at the high school and ended in the middle of downtown. The parade route was lined with people cheering for the Titans. People were taking pictures and looking at the floats, watching and listening to the fire and rescue trucks with sirens and lights going. Next comes the marching band and flag team. Kyle Brozek does a great job as the drum major. Also riding in the parade are the homecoming King and Queen candidates, Claire Timmerman, Maggie Goldhammer, Claire Johnson, Kinsey Tietjen, Michael Feulner, Andrew Wilshusen, Brayden Hergott and Spencer Moore.

At the pep rally, Kinsey Tietjen won the pie-eating contest. Coaches Long, Lanik and Wiedel gave updates on their teams, and the junior class was announced the winners of the float contest.

Friday evening the Titans football team took on the Superior Wildcats. A Ronald Reagan commemorative coin was used for the coin toss. The Rhythmaires sang the national anthem. Ten alumni also sang with the group.

The Titans beat the Wildcats 42-13.

After the game, King Michael Feulner and Queen Maggie Goldhammer were crowned. The celebration continued with the big dance at the high school. Go Titans!

Three county high schools win homecoming bouts

Titans

Thayer Central put Superior away Friday night as the Titans earned their third win on the season, 42-13. The team used 258 yards on 50 rushes to get the job done.

Leading the way was Michael Feulner with 121 yards on 13 rushes. The senior, who was later crowned homecoming king, also provided seven tackles in the game.

Trenton Tietjen completed 115 yards on five passes Friday night. The junior quarterback was also good for one touchdown pass and two short-run touchdowns on keepers.

"I thought we played really well on both sides of the ball," said Titans coach Josh Lanik. "With the style of offense that Superior ran we had to keep it very simple scheme-wise and trust our reads. I thought we did a nice job of that."

Trev Mumm was responsible for two touchdowns in the contest, the first on a 26-yard pass from Tietjen and the second on a 15-yard pass from Tyler Van Cleef. Mumm had a total 94 yards on five receipts in the contest.

Van Cleef also scored in the game on a three-yard scamper in the third quarter. The junior was good for 85 yards on 26 rushes in the game. Rounding out the Titan scoring was junior Brian Loontjer when he made a fumble recovery in the end zone.

"Our team averaged over five yards per running play which means we had to have great holes to run through," Coach Lanik said. "This week with Sutton, we will have a drastic change in opponents. They like to line up and run the ball in between the tackles which is much different than the finesse style of play Superior played."

Kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m. on the Sutton grid.

Eagles

The Bruning-Davenport/Shickley Eagles defeated Freeman Friday night, 36-0, during the Bruning-Davenport homecoming bout. The Eagles amassed 267 yards in the game while Freeman had 232.

"We've made great strides over the last two weeks," said BDS coach Scott Shipley. "We finally played a complete game in all phases."

Junior Ryan Tegtmeier led the offense with 75 yards rushing on 15 carries and two touchdowns. He also threw two touchdown passes; one going to sophomore Wyatt Schoenholz who collected 89 yards on four receipts for the night. The other went to Luke Christensen who scored on a two-yard catch.

Tegtmeier was good for 115 yards in passing while freshman Grant Norder had 13 yards.

Senior Kendrick Holeman, who was later crowned homecoming king, was good for 31 yards rushing and nine tackles while senior Trev Krehnke had seven yards and led in tackles on the night with 15.

The Eagles hit the road this Friday as they look to take on Johnson-Brock. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

Dragons

Deshler lifted its record to 2-2 after defeating Diller-Odell Friday night, 42-20, in the Dragons' homecoming game. Luke Dlouhy led the offense with 221 yards rushing and five touchdowns on 29 carries. Those came on 16-yard, 20-yard, one-yard, 20-yard, and 47-yard runs. He also connected with Josiah Burger on a 25-yard pass for a sixth touchdown.

The Dragons were good for 275 yards on 44 rushes while Diller-Odell could only manage 71 yards on 34 rushes. In passing, Deshler had 49 yards on 4-of-6 passes while Diller-Odell had 84 yards on 9-of-22 passes.

The Dragons head to Adams this Friday to take on Freeman.

VOLLEYBALL

Titans

The Lady Titans regained their composure last weekend after falling during homecoming week to Milford. The Thayer Central team defeated Southern 25-19, 25-12, Malcolm 25-17, 25-15 and Heartland 25-21, 25-18 to win the Southern tournament Saturday. The team lifts its record to 7-1.

"We passed the ball much better over the weekend tournament allowing us to run a more complete offense," said Titans coach Kurk Wiedel. "Bridgette Baden continues to lead our team in kills and hitting efficiency and when she gets fully transitional, she's tough to stop."

Baden amassed 33 kills over the three-game series and nine digs in the game against Heartland. Tarryn Tietjen put together 61 assists throughout the tourney with three ace serves in the games against Heartland and Southern and three ace blocks against Malcolm and one against Southern.

Claire Timmerman had nine digs against Southern while Kinsey Tietjen had seven against Malcolm. Allie Tietjen provided one ace block against Heartland and Lauren Edgecombe had one ace serve against Malcolm.

In the loss against Milford, the team dropped games two, three and five for its only loss on the season. The scoring series was Thayer Central 25-21, 21-25, 12-25, 25-22, 8-15.

"We struggled throughout the match to get into system due to our poor passing and tough serving by Milford," Coach Wiedel said. "We also did not serve tough enough to allow some easy points and then missed some crucial serves in the fifth game."

Kinsey Tietjen played a solid game with seven kills, five ace blocks and 14 digs. Bridgette Baden added 22 kills and Tarryn Tietjen had 38 assists. Ashley Peterson had two ace serves.

The team, 7-1, is currently playing in the Hastings tournament.

Eagles

The Bruning-Davenport/Shickley volleyball team earned a couple of wins this week to lift its record to 11-1. The wins came against Shelby/Rising City on Tuesday and Meridian on Thursday.

In the game against Shelby/Rising City, BDS ran three straight sets for the win, 25-10, 25-21, 25-19.

Shelby Garland led the offense with 14 kills and four ace serves. She also had two ace blocks. MaKaleigh Yantzie added 10 kills and two ace blocks and Ashley Hinrichs had 20 assists.

"We came out fired up against the No. 4 Class C-2 Huskies," said BDS Coach Dan Sorge. "Our strong net play and serving helped us dominate set one. In sets two and three, we jumped out to the big leads before the Huskies fought back. In the third set, Taylor Houck finished the match with two ace serves and four straight points from the serving line."

Against Meridian, the Eagles went 25-10, 14-25, 25-13, 26-25 in the win.

Yantzie led with 17 kills, two ace serves and an ace block. Garland added 10 kills and an ace block, and Whitney Walters had 23 assists.

The Eagles head to Blue Hill for a triangular with Giltner this Thursday. Play begins at 6 p.m.
