Sawyer Wilson of Belvidere triumphantly holds up a quarter after finding it in a haystack.

Belvidere Fall Festival

Fall was in the air in the little town of Belvidere this Sunday at their annual Fall Festival.

Former President Abraham Lincoln and his wife Mary Todd Lincoln meandered through cars at the car show. Children rode around the grounds on a little train. People showcased their crafts, ranging from jams and jellies, to rugs and tiny windmills and flowers made out of spun wheat straw. Both young and old found the perfect gourd or pumpkin out of a large selection in front of the quonset.

"Dig in the haystack for quarters in one minute!" yelled a gentleman standing by a pile of hay on the ground.

Children of all ages gradually found their way over to the haystack and stood around it, looking at each other.

"Ready, set, go!" yelled the gentleman, and children jumped into the hay.

A little blond-haired girl in a red and white dress found her way over to the haystack. She looked questioningly at the pile, then at her parents standing nearby. She then started into the pile, minus her shoes, to dig for the shiny coins.

On the other side of the pile, Luisa Lemke already had a handful of quarters.

After all of the quarters had been found, a child-sized train driven by Kyle Timmerman grabbed the attention of little Sawyer Wilson. He was lifted into a train cart made out of a fifty-gallon drum. As the train took off toward the Union Pacific caboose on the museum grounds, Sawyer looked back at his parents, waving happily and yelling "Bye, Mom!"

Numerous classic cars sat on the east edge of the festival grounds. A bright green Plymouth GTX, yellow Chevrolet Camaro, a Hummer H3 decked out as a Nebraska Cornhusker's tailgate dream machine, a green Dodge Charger and a maroon 1949 Cadillac Fleetwood were amongst the lineups.

"Sixty nine?" asked Abraham Lincoln to a man wiping down a blue Ford Mustang.

"Sixty eight," replied the car's owner proudly.

Inside the metal building, Diane Gardener, from Formoso, Kans. stood in her booth, making a thread by spinning wheat.

Diane has been spinning wheat since 1986 and is a member of the National Association of Wheat Weavers. Her crafts, known as "A Touch of Kansas," range from windmills and crosses to wall hangings, all made from spun wheat or paper made from crushed wheat.

She demonstrated how to make a tiny flower out of the wheat. Carefully, she wrapped the threads around two needles, threading them through and soon, she produced a little flower no bigger than a dime.

Under a white tent near the metal building, Bill Dean, a Civil War living history presenter, stood dressed in a Union Army uniform.

Two men were gazing at Dean's many Civil War artifacts on a table, as well as asking questions about the medals that he wore.

Dean's artifacts filled up a large table. There were knives, pouches, tools, buttons and even a case full of bullets.

Dean also had a Civil War-era gun that he would periodically fire off.

The Belvidere Fall Festival was a well-attended event this year, and will be back next September.

New Stastny Community Center nearing completion

By Elissa Reetz
Hebron Journal-Register
hebronjrnews@windstream.net

The new Stastny Community Center is nearing completion after much anticipation.

The next Hebron City Council meeting will be held in the new building on October 5 at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Robert and Antonette Stastny were married in 1916. They moved to a farm one mile west and one mile south of Alexandria. The farm was a wedding gift from Robert's father. This is where the Stastnys lived all of their married life.

They had one daughter, Jane Nadine Stastny Brinegar.

Robert worked on the farm during the day and enjoyed relaxing at night, listening to the radio, watching television or playing cards. He was a devoted husband and father, and was active in the community. Robert also served on the school board of Alexandria.

Antonette was a hard-working woman who enjoyed gardening, canning, cooking and baking and inviting family and friends over to try new recipes she had heard on the radio. She was well-known for her homemade kolaches.

Robert and Antonette farmed, as well as raised chickens, cattle and hogs.

They were avid travelers, usually going on two trips a year. One summer, they traveled to Japan and spent six weeks touring and sightseeing.

They were both active members of the Alexandria Presbyterian Church and loved giving back to the church and community.

Jane attended a one-room school, District 36, located one mile west of their home for eight years before attending and graduating from Alexandria High School in 1936.

Following graduation, she attended and graduated from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She then became the head dietician at Harvard University in Boston, Massachusetts. She continued her employment there until retiring late in life.

As a memorial to her parents, Jane wanted to give back to the community that they called home.

With the proceeds from the sale of the original farmland, plus land Robert had invested in during his life, the Stastny Community Center has become a hub for events of all kinds.

Robert, Antonette and Jane would be humbled yet proud they were able to make such a large donation that has turned into such a useful addition to the community and all of its members.

There are already a number of community events lined up in the new Community Center.

October 13 is Women's Health Night, followed by the Thayer County Health Services Annual Variety Show on November 1.

The Thayer County Community Theater is holding performances in the new building on November 6 and 7.

Brad Elting & Co. is holding an antique auction on November 14.

November 24 is the Thayer Ministerial Community Thanksgiving Church Service at 7 p.m.

February 12, 2016, there is Fun Pianos! by 176 Keys, a dueling piano show.

The Open House for the new Stastny Community Center is to be Saturday, October 3, at 2 p.m. It's a tailgate party for the Nebraska Huskers football game against the Illinois Fighting Illini.

Free snacks and drinks, games and activities for the whole family and much more. There will also be a beer-only cash bar.

For reservations or more information, contact Blythe Norder by phone at (402)768-1620 or by email at stastnycommunitycenter@gmail.com.

Nebraska Timeline

BY THE NEBRASKA STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The U.S. is running out of oil, 1922

Bucholz #1, near Falls City, Nebraska's first producing oil well.

"Petroleum production in the United States has reached its peak." That was the conclusion of Dr. Ralph McKee, a chemical engineering professor at Columbia University in 1922. His comments appeared in a front page article in the February 15, 1922, edition of Lincoln's Nebraska State Journal with the headline, "Must Look to Shale for Supply of Oil."

McKee stated that there was "no likelihood of the discovery of new petroleum fields in this country," but he predicted that the nation's future energy needs could be supplied by oil from shale.

The article went on to list the states that had potentially rich reserves of oil-bearing shale: Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming led the list, with other large deposits said to be in Nevada, California, Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio. He made no mention of North Dakota.

Two months later, on April 16, the Journal carried another article featuring Professor McKee's comments about the U.S. petroleum outlook. The country was already importing oil, some 130 million barrels from Mexico in 1920 alone. Consumption was increasing by about 50 million barrels per year.

McKee warned, "The number of trucks, farm tractors, and automobiles used must be decreased or we must find another source of motor fuel." In 1920 Nebraska had some 205,000 registered automobiles and trucks, while petroleum-powered tractors were replacing draft animals as motive power on farms.

The use of cars and trucks, as well as the mechanization of agriculture, would only accelerate in the future. By 1941 there were some thirty million cars and trucks in the United States.

Experiments at Columbia University had shown how the shale could be converted into motor fuel. By heating the shale, the solid bituminous material called "kerogen" released a petroleum-like liquid, which became ever lighter in consistency "due to a cracking process . . . by which the large molecules are split into smaller ones, the higher the temperature the smaller the molecules. Accordingly, by choice of the right temperature, we will get largely motor fuel composed of small molecules rather than lubricating and fuel oils composed of large molecules."

McKee predicted that some 30 percent of the shale oil could be converted to gasoline. The gasoline thus produced would deposit more carbon in the engine cylinders "and has a little stronger odor, however, who uses even present day gasoline as a 'perfume?'"

The carbon deposit problem might be solved by mixing alcohol with the gasoline, a harbinger of the modern practice of blending ethanol with gasoline.

Discovery of more U.S. reserves of traditional petroleum, including modest oil-producing fields in southeastern and western Nebraska in the 1940s and 1950s, deferred the need to use shale to meet an "oil crisis."

However, increasing oil imports combined with world unrest led to a perceived energy crisis by the 1970s. By the early twenty-first century, new extraction methods and the cost of imported oil made production from shale resources economically feasible, though recent oil price declines have dampened the shale and tar sands boom in places such as North Dakota.

Nevertheless North America's vast shale reserves and new technologies, including ethanol production, have deferred the day when the U.S. will run out of petroleum or comparable fuels. Professor McKee was wrong about the prospect of running out of oil during the 1920s, but right about shale's role as a future petroleum source.

Women's Health Night

On October 13, Thayer County Health Services will host Women's Health Night at the Stastny Community Center in Hebron. The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a health fair featuring over 30 booths. Guests can browse the booths while enjoying a variety of appetizers and a wine tasting provided by Superior Estates Winery.

Following the health fair, there will be several presentations by healthcare professionals on topics relating to women's health. These presentations will coincide with the "Paint Yourself Healthy" session taught by Cindy Chinn, a local artist.

Registered guests will receive instructions on creating a landscape painting in four easy steps. Guests not participating in the painting session will still be able to participate in the informative presentations while their friends create their own one of a kind painting.

Thayer County Health Services is providing this event FREE of charge. However, there is a $25 fee for guests wanting to participate in the painting session.

Every guest in attendance will receive a complimentary gift from Thayer County Health Services and be eligible to enter to win one of the various door prizes provided by the evening's presenters and the health fair vendors. Items included in the door prizes are: a Fitbit, gift certificates to area businesses, fitness membership, gift baskets and many other items.

Thayer County Health Services invites all women in the local area to join them for what promises to be a fun filled event. They hope you are able to take time out of your busy schedule for yourself and join them at Women's Health Night.

This event will be a great way to remind all women that taking care of themselves is important for their health and the health of their families.

Statistically, women are still the primary caregivers. They take care of their husbands, children and sometimes parents. Usually women are so busy taking care of others they often forget to focus on their own health. However, research shows that when women take care of themselves, the overall health of their family improves.

Women's Health Night is designed to educate all women--wives, mothers, grandmothers, daughters, sisters, aunts and girlfriends--about the steps they need to take to improve their health and prevent disease. After all, a few simple steps to improve your health can make a big difference.

Thayer County Health Services wants to help all our patients stay healthy and be physically fit. The best way to prevent illness is to remember to get your regular check-ups and take care of yourself through diet and exercise.

For more information about Women's Health Night or to register for the "Paint Yourself Healthy" session call 402-768-6041.

This event promises to be a great opportunity to learn about the latest women's health issues and ask questions regarding your own health.

STOMP! Out Epilepsy and SUDEP holds first walk in Hebron

STOMP! Out Epilepsy and SUDEP is a fundraising walk to raise funds for the Chelsea Hutchison Foundation. The Chelsea Hutchison Foundation (CHF) is a Colorado non-profit corporation formed by Julie and Doug Hutchison to provide help and support to individuals, particularly children and young adults, who have epilepsy.

When you support CHF, you make a big difference in the lives of those who struggle with seizures and epilepsy.

The Chelsea Hutchison Foundation is named for Julie and Doug's beloved daughter, Chelsea, who died in her sleep during a seizure in April of 2009, at the age of 16.

SUDEP (Sudden Unexpected Death in Epilepsy) was the cause of her death. During the 6 years that Chelsea had seizures, no one ever told the Hutchisons a seizure could take her life, other than through an accidental fall or drowning. As a result of that omission, the Chelsea Hutchison Foundation informs those living with epilepsy of the risks and raises awareness of SUDEP so that no other families are blind-sided.

We are a very grass roots, volunteer-based Foundation that is committed to getting relief right into the hands of those who need it. We aren't big, but we are mighty and determined.

Sunday, September 20th was the first time STOMP! has been hosted in Hebron.

STOMP! Out Epilepsy and SUDEP is hosted in 9 other states across the nation.

STOMP! In Hebron was hosted by Quenton and Shelly Pulliam of Hebron. The Pulliam family has been blessed to be on the receiving end of the foundations generosity for their daughter, and has found much needed comfort and support that is provided by the foundation.

Hosting the walk in their hometown not only raises funds, but educates the community on a disorder so few people understand.

There were over 120 participants in this year's walk in Hebron, with 42 local business and family sponsors.

With the amazing generosity of the community and outpouring of support, we raised over $4000 for the foundation.

The funds that were raised not only go to provide education about SUDEP and epilepsy, but The Chelsea Hutchison Foundation also provides Emfit, SmartWatch and SAMiAlert movement monitors to help protect against SUDEP.

We also raise funds to provide grants for seizure-response dogs. These trained companion dogs may be able to detect an oncoming seizure and provide warnings and/or respond after the onset of a seizure.

Domesti-PUPS is one of the organizations that works with CHF to provide and train service dogs. Domesti-PUPS brought 8 service dogs in training with their handlers to walk with us at STOMP in Hebron.

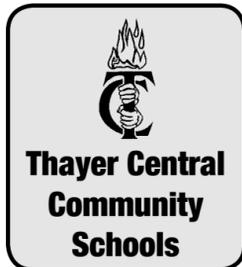

The Domesti-PUPS Service-PUPS program helps individuals gain the independence they so greatly deserve. These special canines are taught anywhere from 30-90 commands over a two-year period before being placed with their future life partner.

To date, CHF has provided grants for 77 seizure response dogs, and over 300 lifesaving monitors across the United States.

Chelsea Hutchison Foundation respects the value and quality of life of every person living with epilepsy. We are dedicated to providing opportunities that allow individuals and families greater independence, increased confidence and community understanding.

For more information please visit our website: www.chelseahutchisonfoundation.com or www.domestipups.org or follow us on facebook.

Be ready for STOMP 2016! We will be back next year!

Dear Editor:

The windows in the vacant buildings on main street have been given a face lift thanks to Jamie Luttrell. I enjoy driving down the street looking at her artistic abilities. She is a gifted artist and her talents are a huge asset to our community.

YVONNE LONG

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

When writing about the Bowman/Bruning reunion in Boise, Idaho, that was held this summer, I listed the four surviving grandchildren of J.W. Bowman's 32 grandchildren. Actually, there are five of us.

I don't know how I could have forgotten the other one. We range in age from 70 to 92 years of age, and the 92 year old is Alton 'Mook' Wilhelms who lives in Lincoln. His father and mother are Herman and Minnie Bowman Wilhelms and his grandmother is Tracy Ennen Janssen Bowman who is buried in the Bruning Lutheran Cemetery alongside other family members.

My apologies to our much loved cousin.

Nebraska Timeline

BY THE NEBRASKA STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Fairmont Newspaperman: Lou Frazier

Many outstanding journalists have plied their trade in Nebraska since it was organized as a territory in 1854. One of them was Lou W. Frazier, who at his death held the record for the longest continuous ownership and editorship, sixty-nine years, of any paper in the state, according to his December 2, 1954, obituary in that same paper, Fairmont's Fillmore Chronicle.

He assumed ownership of the Chronicle on July 1, 1885. Although he leased the paper to the Geneva publisher in 1951, Frazier continued to write his "Side Lights" column until about a month before he died on November 19, 1954, at age 86. In 1921, on the occasion of the Chronicle's forty-ninth anniversary, Frazier recounted the ups and downs of running a country newspaper:

"With this issue, The Chronicle completes forty-nine full years of existence and has faith to believe it will continue until the half century mark is reached—at least. After so long a time—nearly thirty-six years of which have been under the present ownership—we have decided to stay indefinitely.

"Almost everything that could happen to a country newspaper has already been visited upon The Chronicle, and it still lives, having managed thus far to escape the sheriff. There have been many times when we were ready to quit—and couldn't. A few occasions when we were able to quit—and wouldn't."

"It figures out in the long run something like a bad habit—or the seven year itch. And the Side-Lighter stays on for two main reasons—because of his friends and in spite of his enemies. Both elements have a real value if you are able to tell 'em apart. And we've been doing a tolerably fair job of guessing or we would have been down and out years ago. Not that such a result would have concerned anyone except ourselves to any important extent. We are merely stating a few cold-blooded facts, and you are at liberty to approve or reject them as your pleasure may chance dictate.

"The 'theoretical' journalist doesn't last long in the country newspaper field. It takes a practical 'newspaperman' to operate a country newspaper and keep his checks payable at the bank. The Chronicle has, so far, succeeded in accomplishing this feat, with no material aid from the bellyachers and free space grafters. And the newspaper could not have prospered or existed without friends.

"If you are with us, we're always pleased to meet you, naturally. If you are one of the antis, we'll try to continue to worry along without you. Everybody should be happy, if they can."

In 1944, Frazier remained vigorously independent and optimistic: "The Chronicle has never missed an issue or defaulted a financial obligation. The owner has no partners except his wife and the Lord, and neither has attempted to dictate his political or religious idiosyncrasies. Editorially I aim to say what I think."

Belvidere

By LaDonna Avers

The culmination of last week was brought to an end Sunday with a very successful "Fall Festival." With the assistance of people from all over the county, the Thayer County Historical Society was ready to go on Sunday morning.

President Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd Lincoln strolled the grounds greeting people as a good crowd enjoyed worshipping together at the outdoor church service with Pastor Kim Dunker. The airways resounded with music provided and Bob Dawley and the Praise Choir.

The Legion Riders rode in on their motorcycles to lead the flag raising on the freshly painted 64-foot flag pole. It was recently painted by Devon Hartley on Thursday and the new stainless steel cable, new brackets and pulleys have been replaced by M.b.R.

There were several people who questioned the age of the flag pole. If anyone knows this, please give the Historical Society the information. A soldier in Civil War uniform could be seen around the grounds and heard as he shot off his Civil War black powder musket.

Lance Johnson from Bruning had his model train displays; there were rides on the little train; the quarter hunt in the hay; and displays of sauerkraut making and corn shelling and grinding gave visitors a lot to look at and enjoy. Mike Thieme reported at least 20 more cars than last year for the car show. And, there were over 50 vendors.

A lovely dinner was served by the Historical Society with the assistance of the Belvidere Woman's Club and, as usual, it was a big hit. A new attraction this year was walking tacos which were very successful.

Bob Dawley continued to sing to the crowd who relaxed under the shade of the trees and Karie Gaston Buchli entertained by singing a number of songs. Caleb Jalas played several beautiful numbers for the crowd on the famous yellow painted piano.

At the end of the day the winners of the prize baskets were announced. Kelly Wagner of Belvidere won the Halloween basket; Lois and Jim Pederson of Deshler won the Apple basket; Mrs. Gehle of Chester won the Home Baked Foods basket and also got the high bid for the "Autumn" painting. Frank Bruning from Bruning had high bid for the baby cradle.

Kirk and Wanda Yoachim visited Ruth Yoachim over the weekend. They had dinner at the Fall Festival on Sunday and they all enjoyed watching little Clara and Caroline hunt for quarters in the straw pile.

The Woman's Club will meet at the Belvidere Community Center on Oct. 6 at 7 p.m.

The program will feature Donna Leffler, from Fairmont, who was Nebraska's Mother of the Year this year. She will be accompanied by Nancy Galloway from Fairmont, who is our District IV GFWC President.

LaDonna Avers will present the speaker and also give the Thought for the Day. Angie and Bonnie Priefert are hostesses.

Members who did not remember to bring their "sock it to me sock" last month, please bring them to this meeting.

The UCC Bible study will meet again on Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Courtyard Terrace.

The Historical Society will meet for their regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday at the Annex. The Fall Festival will be duly analyzed at this time.
